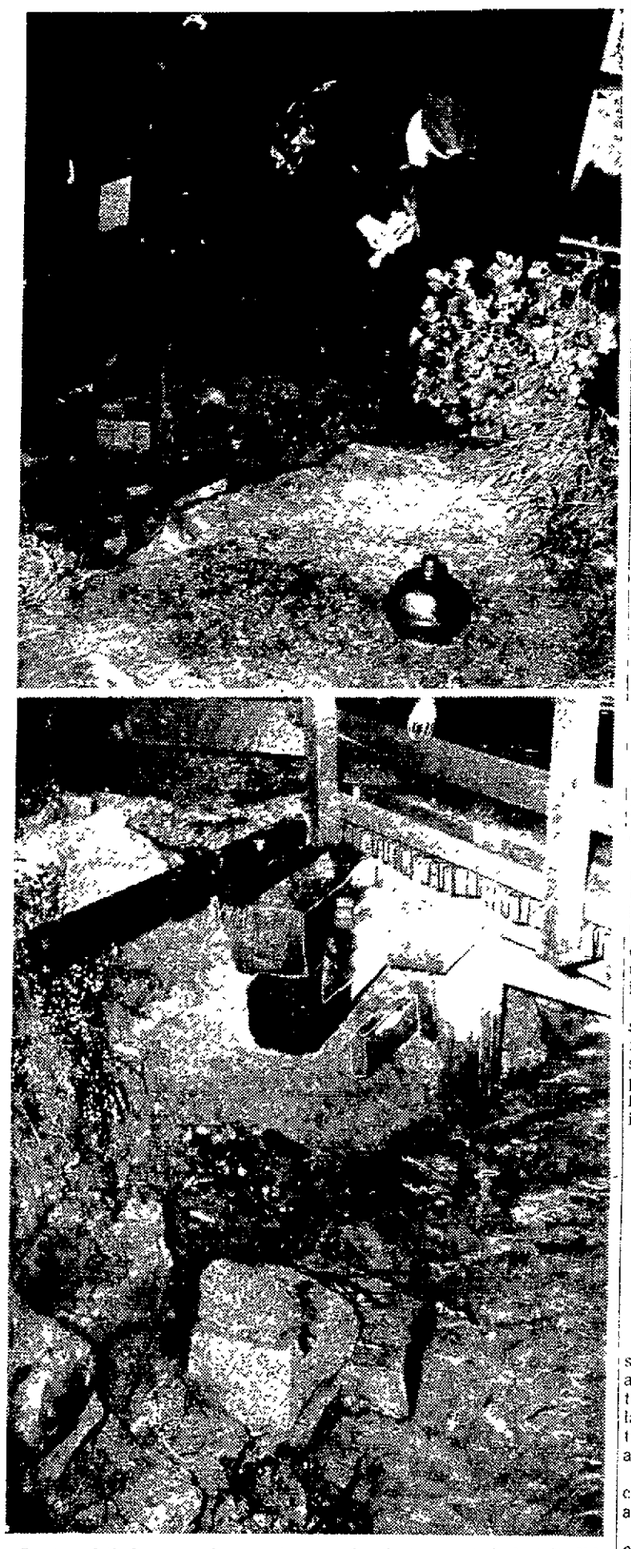
GREAT UKRAINE BATTLE FLARES

As Water Cut Under Bridge



Last night's heavy rain swept over storm sewers clogged with leaves and turned most of the downtown streets into miniature canals. Water rushing around the edges of the temporary North Main street bridge over Touby's run cut away at the earth near the bridge's edge. Mansfield police inspected the erosion but reported that it did not endanger motor traffic. In the top photo, Capt. John Miller trains his flashlight on a growing pocket of foundation being eaten away. Below is a view of the bridge's underside showing how the water cut the earth away from the bridge's foundation. City officials said the bridge was safe.

Damage High As 'Cloudburst' Floods City

WATER FLOWS IN HUNDREDS OF BASEMENTS

Mansfielders Survey Damage Estimated To Run Into Thousands of Dollars.

STREETS LIKE CREEKS

Heavy Downpour Flows Over Sewers as Leaves Stop Up Catch Basins.

Mansfielders today were busy baling and mopping cellars and basements flooded during last night's cloudburst and electrical storm and began to take an inventory of the thousands of dollars damage caused by the storm.

Starting shortly before 6 p. m., the rain poured down so heavily that more than an inch and a half of water fell in less than an hour. Total precipitation recorded during the storm and showers up to midnight amounted to 2.64 inches.

Streets were transformed into small creeks as leaves, stripped from trees by the heavy rain, stopped up sewer spills. In other parts of the city, deep pools formed at intersections preventing the flow of traffic.

Hundreds of automobiles were stalled because of the rain and clogged streets. Garages did a land-office business, rushing their repair trucks and mechanics about to pull autos and trucks from water which washed above running-boards and to dry out ignitions dampened in the driving rain.

Mansfielders were greeted with sunshine this morning, however, and the weatherman promised them the first rainless day since last Thursday. The prediction for tonight and tomorrow is cloudy and cooler.

Last night's 2.64 inches of precipitation brought the total amount for the last week to 4.56.

Although city officials received only two or three complaints of flooded basements, homes, stores and industrial plants in the north end of the city were hard hit by the water which flooded over curbs and gushed into basements.

The Barnes Manufacturing company, working on defense orders were forced to suspend operations for almost five hours and threw up sandbag barricades to stall off the stream of water which threatened to flood the plant's foundry room. There is no basement in the plant and the water flooded the ground floor.

Operations were completely shut off when lightning struck a electrical substation near the plant cutting off electrical power. Ohio Public Service company employes worked until nearly 2 a. m. to restore power.

Several of the North Main street stores reported that water rose above the curb and filled basements, some to the depth of about three feet. Railroad yards were

Germans Stage 'All Out' Drive

This Central Press map shows how the Germans are driving toward Moscow in an all-out attack on Moscow, the Russian capital. One German army strikes southeastward from south of Lake Ilmer, while another hammers northeastward from the region of Rostavi, southeast of Smolensk. Nazi dispatches today claimed a victory near the Sea of Azov, on the extreme southern front.

HERE'S BREAK, OHIOANS—TAX ON TAX KILLED

State Rules Sales Tax Won't Be Collected on U. S. Levy on Jewelry, Cosmetics.

OTHERS TO REMAIN

Herbert Rules Assessments To Apply, However, To Autos and Refrigerators.

Mansfield shoppers will not have to pay Ohio's three per cent sales tax on the federal government's new retail sales tax on jewelry, cosmetics and furs, according to an announcement by Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert today in Columbus.

Herbert informed Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt that he had ruled against the double taxation possibility after numerous groups had protested to him.

Mansfielders and other Ohio residents must however continue to pay the state retail tax as in the past on such articles as refrigerators, phonograph records, cameras, and automobiles where the federal tax is paid by the manufacturer.

"The tax imposed by the revenue code on the retailer's sale of an article is by statute not a part of the taxable price of the article," Herbert asserted. "This clearly places such tax directly upon the purchaser and not the retail vendor."

Evatt estimated that the ruling would save Ohio consumers $140,000 annually. The "tax-upon-a-tax" on other items will cost them $300,000 annually.

Mansfield shoppers, who can prove they paid three per cent state tax upon the federal tax since Oct. 1 on furs, jewelry or cosmetics, can claim a refund from the state, according to Evatt.

Herbert based his ruling on the three exempted classifications on a new regulation by the federal government holding that the federal tax is not a part of the taxable price of the article.

This regulation, he held, "clearly places such (federal) tax directly upon the purchaser and not upon the retail vendor.

"The method of calculating the tax and the examples set forth in the regulation show beyond any doubt that the 10 per cent fixed by the federal law is to be calculated upon the price of the article to the vendee."

In the absence of any court decisions on this issue the attorney general said he felt that the regulation by the internal revenue department should be followed until it is reversed or modified by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Russian Fleet Pounds German Invading Force

Nazi High Command Claims Victory On Southern Front, But London Hears Germans Have Been Checked With Severe Casualties.

BULLETIN

BERLIN — (UP) — A German military spokesman claimed today that Nazi forces have captured Mariupol and Berdyansk, north of the Sea of Azov and only 110 miles from Rostov, heart of the great Donets industrial region. At Mariupol the Germans would be only 50 miles from the great Russian steel making center of Stalino, northeast of Mariupol.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's high command claimed victory over the Russians today in a great new battle in the Ukraine, north of the Sea of Azov, but London military quarters reported that the Germans had been checked with severe losses and that guns of the Soviet Black sea fleet were heavily pounding the invaders.

Front-line dispatches to Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, reported a violent battle was raging on the central (Moscow) front, with Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's troops striking fierce blows against German armored wedges driven into the Russian lines.

Soviet infantry, supported by tanks and aviation, were reported to have attacked heavy German troop concentrations immediately after a long march, destroying 198 tanks and killing more than 1,000 Nazis in three sectors.

Red Star said a Soviet tank battalion ambushed a Nazi tank column southeast of Kiev, the German-held Ukraine capital, and smashed seven tanks. Bloody German losses were reported here, as well.

On the northern front, the Red army announced that Leningrad's defense guns had smashed 19 German earth-and-timber forts on the approaches to the old czarist capital, silenced two artillery batteries and put other Nazi siege weapons out of action.

Masses of German troops were said to have been dispersed by Soviet fire.

A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters indicated that the battle north of the Azov sea was part of the "gigantic new developments" which the fuehrer himself declared had begun last Wednesday.

"German troops, shoulder to shoulder with troops of the allied countries, are pursuing the defeated enemy," the Nazi communique said.

"Motorized and tank units thrust deep into the enemy retreating columns."

The Russians, acknowledging

Bricker Claims New Deal Tries To 'Smear' BUC

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Governor John W. Bricker today accused the New Deal administration of trying "to smear" state operation of unemployment compensation systems by investigation of alleged Hatch "clean politics" law violations.

The governor said he had refused permission to the U. S. civil service commission to set up investigation headquarters within the Ohio bureau of unemployment compensation to seek alleged Hatch act violators.

"The investigation in Ohio, and other states, is just a New Deal move to smear state operation of the unemployment compensation systems and provide the scenery for a federal grab of the state unemployment compensation systems, confiscation of two billion in state funds, including $206,000,000 of Ohio's, and control of thousands of jobs," Bricker declared.

The U. S. civil service commission recently gathered testimony at a hearing on charges of political activity against members of the Cincinnati office of the Ohio BUC. The commission has not given a decision on the cases.

SAY I. C. WHITE WAS TORPEDOED

Survivors Reach Port, Assert Submarine Also Shelled American-Owned Ship.

(By Associated Press)

RIO DE JANEIRO—Survivors of the sunken American-owned tanker I. C. White told port authorities here today she was torpedoed without warning at night in the South Atlantic by an unidentified submarine which then shelled the ship as she sank.

The port authorities boarded the rescue ship Del Norte for routine inspection while United States embassy and naval officials took depositions from the 17 survivors aboard.

Another rescue ship, the West Nilus with 17 other survivors of the 37-man crew of the I. C. White, was due to arrive at noon.

Newspapermen were prevented from boarding the ship to interview the survivors until after their statements had been taken for the state department.

The man who identified himself as a survivor talked briefly to an Associated Press reporter in a launch alongside the ship, however.

Port authorities said members of the I. C. White crew aboard the Del Norte told them that a torpedo struck the tanker squarely amidships shortly after midnight and that thereafter the sinking ship was shelled.

Crew members were quoted as saying the I. C. White's radio was put out of commission before distress signals could be sent.

Workers Launch Chamber's Annual Membership Drive

Fifty members of the Mansfied Chamber of Commerce attended "kick off" meeting of the annual membership campaign at an "early bird" breakfast at the Mansfield-Leland hotel today at 7:30 a. m.

Following the breakfast, the workers started solicitations to obtain 750 new and renewed memberships. First reports on the campaign's progress will be heard at a luncheon meeting tomorrow noon at the hotel.

Robert C. Remy, president, opened the "early bird" meeting with a short talk. He commended the workers on the enthusiasm they displayed in starting the drive. E. C. Geiger, chairman of the membership committee, and Charles Kafer, campaign chairman, are directing the program.

Short talks were also made by Paul M. Eliot, C. H. Henkel and C. L. Van Derau, past presidents of the chamber.

SOO SPAN FALL DELAYS SHIPS

Two on Engine Drowned When Bridge Collapses as Train Crosses It.

(By Associated Press)

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich.—The mammoth bridge across the St. Mary's river buckled beneath a freight train early today, hurling two trainmen to death as the engine plunged into the water and blocking vital vessel defense freight movement in the Soo canal.

One of two great spans in the bridge collapsed as a heavily loaded Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic train started to cross from Canada. The locomotive, dragging two freight cars behind it, dropped into the river.

Four men were riding in the locomotive. Engineer Hazen Willis and Conductor Dave Monroe, trapped in the engine cab, were drowned. Fireman Carl Zelmer and Brakeman Francis Peller climbed back up the twisted bridge girders to safety.

Suspicions of sabotage were discounted by authorities inasmuch as the bridge, which spans a vital canal through which come lake freighters bearing ore has been

OPM Labor Committee Offers Plan To Ease Situation Here

Appearing in Mansfield to help the city ease a threatened serious curtailment of employment due to the federal curb on production on household appliances, the labor supply committee, of the Office of Production Management today studied the Mansfield situation and suggested a program for industry and labor to follow.

The object of today's meetings, OPM representatives said, was to determine the number of unemployed workers here, to register them as they are displaced, and to train all unemployed persons for defense production, if and when the government should call upon Mansfield industries to produce war products.

First sessions were held this morning, with separate meetings with representatives of both Mansfield CIO and AFL labor unions.

The committee was to meet this afternoon with the heads of 24 manufacturing plants in the city to outline a suggested policy

Authorized sources in Berlin explained the death sentence remained pending, but said "the decision whether or not it will be carried out has been held up."

Rescued Child, 5, Survives Rigors Too Much For Adults

(By United Press)

CONWAY, N. H.—Physicians said today that five-year-old Pamela Hollingworth, lost without food for eight days and nights in the rain and bitter cold of the White mountains, had survived an experience that might have killed an adult in "surprisingly good condition."

She was responding to a diet of warm milk and orange juice, sweetened with lactose, and physicians said she probably would be strong enough to go home this week.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Hollingworth of Lowell, Mass., were jubilant. They had been confident she would be found, and Pamelia had been too.

Her feet were being electrically heated to offset frostbite.

Otherwise, Pamela, a fragile, blue-eyed, brown-haired child, was uninjured. Having eaten nothing while she was lost, she weighed 37 pounds, eight less than when she wandered away from her parents on Sept. 28, while they were picnicking.

William Matson of the North Haverhill civilian conservation corps camp found her at 5:30 p.

'Chutist Rescued, Now He's Anxious To Escape Crowds

(By Associated Press)

SUNDANCE, Wyo. — People scare George Hopkins, but six nights alone atop a rock spire leave him without qualms.

That's how the 30-year-old Texas parachutist voiced his reactions after he was eased to the base of Devil's Tower after dark last night by eight veteran Alpinists.

"Were you frightened up there or coming down?" he was asked.

"Never was," he replied, "but I'd rather climb back up than face that crowd."

The headlights of several hundred cars glared at the white-garbed daredevil and the weary men who saved his life — and risked their own — through 12 perilous hours of climbing and descending the 1,280 foot volcanic formation.

"I want a shave and a haircut," Hopkins said as onlookers surged around the little group.

"Boy, I'll never grow whiskers. This six-day beard is terrible."

Hopkins said that until he floated to the summit of the tower last Wednesday morning, he liked mountain climbing "as a hobby."

"But not as a vocation," he added.

The San Antonio adventurer dropped 600 feet to the little circular turret by means of a parachute. His inspiration was a $50 bet and the desire for publicity as a chutist.

ARMIES LOCKED IN NEW BATTLE ON SOUTH FRONT

that the Germans had "wedged into our lines" at an unspecified sector of the western (Moscow) front, reported that Soviet tanks and bombers had destroyed many Nazi tanks in fierce counter-blows.

Advices reaching London said the Germans had suffered bloody casualties on the narrow Perekop isthmus, in a drive southward into the Crimea peninsula, and that a Nazi division had been halted at Genichesk, on the northwest shores of the Azov sea, under shelling by the Red fleet.

Silent on operations along the central (Moscow) front the German high command admitted that the Russians had made a new attempt to land troops under cover of night on the Finnish gulf coast west of Leningrad, but declared

"A majority of the ships used for transport were sunk The enemy units which landed were completely annihilated."

Elsewhere on the 1,200-mile battlefront from Leningrad to the Black sea, the Nazi high command said "offensive operations . . . take their planned course."

Dispatches from Leningrad said the Soviet cruiser Kirov, standing offshore, destroyed two German batteries, killed 400 soldiers and demolished 15 German tanks.

Mystery still cloaked the exact direction of Hitler's vast new offensive.

While the German high command said the battle north of the Azov sea was "in the course of announced operations"—an apparent reference to Hitler's disclosure of a new push—other sources indicated that the drive was aimed at Moscow.

Two German columns have been reported by authoritative London sources to be progressing slowly toward Moscow, against bitter Russian resistance, from the Valdai hills, 220 miles northwest of the capital, and Roslavl, an equal distance to the southwest.

The Smolensk zone, where Russians have reported sustained counter-offensives, apparently was by-passed in between.

In Berlin, the well-informed Dienst Aus Deutschland thus summed up the German position upon the reports:

"All that Germans are willing to admit is that the new operations are of such a strategic magnitude that they exceed everything else achieved in the eastern campaign."

Positions of the defenders of besieged Leningrad were represented in Moscow as strong as ever

A correspondent with the Finnish army on the Karelian isthmus however, said miles-high clouds of smoke hung over both Leningrad and Kronstadt, the Red navy's island base to the west, as a result of bombardments by German artillery

Britain Calls Off Prisoner Exchange

NEWHAVEN, England—(AP)—Britons prepared in an atmosphere of disappointment and confusion today for disembarkation of sick and wounded German prisoners from hospital ships here as a dispute between London and Berlin ended in cancellation of a proposed cross-channel exchange.

The government charged "a flagrant breach of faith" by Germany in arrangements for the exchange, which the German prisoners had awaited aboard ships here since last Friday night

During the morning, stretcher bearers of the Royal army medical corps rehearsed disembarkation procedure They filed on board the ship St. Julien and carried off dummies of blankets rolled up to represent wounded men

The Berlin-London disagreement was over the scope of the exchange

The news was broken to the prisoners through M. L. A. Haecius, permanent delegate of the International Red Cross in Britain. There were a few shouts of protest Most of the men accepted the report in silence

British Claim Sea Victory Over Italy

LONDON—(INS)—A sensational new attack on Italy's submarines in the Mediterranean in which damaged or sent to the bottom 11 more enemy ships was announced by the British admiralty today.

Nazis Fight Off Serbian Revolt

BERLIN—(AP)—German troops and two companies of Croatian Ustachas have smashed a putsch led by an attorney's daughter in the west Serbian town of Sabac, the authoritative news service Dienst Aus Deutschland said today.

The Ustachas are the uniformed guard of Dr. Ante Pavelic, chief of the Croat state created from the remnants of former Yugoslavia

Bands of Chetniks, guerrilla fighters, and armed farmers were declared to have taken part in the attack on the town, which has a population of about 12,000 and which lies only 40 miles west of Belgrade, former Yugoslav capital.

Finland Rejects British Warnings

HELSINKI, (via Berlin)—(UP)—Finland today rejected a British warning against continuing hostilities in Russia, asserting that she was fighting in self-defense free of "political obligations" and was "grateful" that she did not have to wage the war alone.

"Finland does not understand how Britain, with whom Finland wished and still wishes peaceful relations, can see herself forced to treat Finland as an enemy," the reply to the British warning said.

(Speculation was aroused in unofficial British circles that Britain might declare war on Finland as result of her attitude. The Finnish reply, however, has not yet been officially received in London.)

OPM SUGGESTS PLAN TO EASE JOB SITUATION

Labor Supply Committee In City Today For Meetings With Unions, Industry.

for solving the unemployment situation and the switch over to defense production, similar to the plan given to the union leaders this morning.

Tonight a joint meeting of both union groups and management are scheduled to discuss the policy which was offered to the groups separately by the agency officials.

OPM officials this morning pointed out to union representatives that their plan for assisting displaced workers obtain employment was merely a suggested plan and that adaption of a community plan rested entirely with the unions and management of Mansfield industries.

It was explained that the situation was a local community problem and that application must be worked out with the co-operation of the plants and the workers involved.

The OPM's plan calls for the registration with the unions of all displaced workers in an effort to offer defense training to the men at government expense during his unemployment period.

They asked management to fill their requests for skilled labor through the Ohio Unemployment service, which they suggested as a clearing house for compiling data on the unemployment situation.

Under this plan, they said, residents of Mansfield and Richland county would be given preference over employes from other localities who have been laid off due to curtailment.

This plan, too, would also preserve the seniority rights of displaced union workmen who would be called for defense work.

With defense training classes at Senior high school filled to capacity it was suggested that the unemployed persons be given training "around the clock" at the NYA training center at Charles Mill reservoir.

Preliminary observations, OPM representatives said, revealed that there was shortage of skilled, machine operators in Mansfield and that it was probable classes in these trades would be conducted here for the workers.

Under this setup, with figures available in Washington on Mansfield production capacities on one hand and the skilled labor supply on the other, officials would be able at a glance to give consideration to industries here on defense contracts, committee members said.

The series of sessions was the second stage in the OPM's program to assist distressed cities, where non-defense industries have been hard hit by priorities ratings, in availing themselves to a switch over to defense production.

Several weeks ago a committee from the government agency was here to discuss Mansfield industries ability to handle contracts for war materials.

Since then the OPM has made a survey of all plants in the city to determine to the type of production for which they would be best suited

m. yesterday. She was trudging along Middle Sister trail, on a shoulder of Mt. Chocoura, about two miles from the White Ledge National forest grove where she had disappeared.

He heard a faint cry. "Here I am," and ran ahead There stood Pamela in the trail, her face tear-stained, her hair matted and tangled. Her hands and face were grimy; her body scratched by brambles. Her thin, green overalls and light sweater—her only protection from temperatures that had dropped as low as 24 degrees—were dirty and torn.

"I've been lost since Sunday," she told Matson.

He shouted and other searchers quickly joined him One of them, Forest Ranger C. P Mead, wrote on a piece of paper: "Pam well, happy, and in good condition." He sent a forest guard racing to headquarters with it.

While Mead was carrying Pamela, wrapped in his coat, to an army "jeep" car, she told him:

"I slept on the ground, I been drinking out of brooks and everything, but there hasn't been anything to eat."

Her father Joseph E. Hollingworth, a Lowell, Mass., lumberman, met the jeep at the foot of the mountain. Tears streamed down his cheeks when he saw her. He fell to his knees and took her in his arms

"I told you we'd lick 'em," he said

"Daddy, I've been waiting for you," she mumbled through her swollen lips. "I'm awful hungry."

She was taken to Memorial hospital at North Conway, and from there Hollingworth telephoned her prostrate mother.

"Pam's found! Pam's found!" her mother cried. "I've got to get there."

At mid-evening, she arrived with an escort of state troopers. She hurried into Pamela's room.

"Oh, it's wonderful," she said. She wept as she gathered Pamela into her arms flooded and residents on Franklin and Adams streets reported basements filled with water.

Apparently Richland county outside the city, escaped serious damage from the heavy rains, according to Howard C. Sword, county surveyor. Little damage was reported from outlying districts early today.

In the city, however, it was a different story. Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton reported that although street department workers toiled all yesterday removing leaves from the city streets, matting of other leaves above sewer spills prevented the storm water from entering them.

The driving rain surged down Marion avenue and Park avenue west, branching off onto side streets as it moved. North Main, Mulberry and Walnut streets were more than curb high and motorists found it necessary to detour to reach their destinations.

At the Park avenue east subway and on Arthur avenue, autos were stalled when water sloshed high above running-boards.

Little wind accompanied the rain and lightning and Ohio Public Service workmen found their greatest storm trouble in replacing electric light fuses in dozens of homes.

The Boston Cash market on North Main street reported that the water washing through its basement walls removed the labels from hundreds of cans of food.

Two cellar walls caved in at a home on Chilton avenue occupied by Harold Lersch. Lersch's wife and children were standing on the cellar stairs when the walls collapsed. They reported that the house settled somewhat following the collapse.

Water whipping around the edges of the North Main street bridge washed the earth from beneath one of the sidewalks. Police were called out to make a hurried inspection but traffic was not prevented from passing over the bridge.

Mansfield firemen were called out to extinguish a minor fire in an electric sign in front of the Southern hotel. Firemen said that the sign was probably struck by lightning

More than half of the city's 123 miles of storm sewers were put out of operation by leaves covering the sewer spills, city officials said. Hard hit were residents in the new residential developments where streets have not yet been graded.

At least one traffic accident was blamed on the storm. Mr. and Mrs. James W. Stonebraker, 637 Park avenue west, suffered minor injuries when their automobile skidded on abandoned street car rails in front of 520 Park avenue west and crashed into a utility pole.

The impact snapped the pole off at the base and Ohio Public Service men were called out to replace it and to remove wires from the street.

Stonebraker suffered lacerations and bruises and complained of a chest injury. Mrs. Stonebraker received cuts and bruises.

Storm Center Passes Out Into Gulf

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—(INS)—With winds reaching a velocity of 60 miles per hour, the center of a tropical storm, which swept across the southern tip of Florida early yesterday and then curved northward after entering the Gulf of Mexico, passed west of Tallahassee about 8:30 a. m. today.

Several thousand soldiers, members of the 31st division en route to their Florida bases from the recent Louisiana maneuvers, entered army trucks and were to continue their journey as soon as the storm abates.

Three Killed In Kansas Tornado

KANSAS CITY—(INS)—Bouncing like a giant rubber ball, a devastating tornado that hedge-hopped across the eastern part of Kansas City and three suburban communities today left three persons dead, over 125 injured, and property damage amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The twister, which struck suddenly last night after a terrific hail and rain storm, cut a 300-foot wide swath through the Kansas City suburbs and continued on toward Braymer, where it cut a 200-foot path and destroyed a number of farm homes and buildings.

Many cattle were reported killed before the whirlwind "wore itself out" between Braymer and Chillicothe.

under guard of Fort Brady troops during the defense emergency.

Railroad and military authorities were unable to say how soon they could clear the river. As the morning wore on boat after boat sailing in from Whitefish bay and Lake Huron dropped anchor.

The St. Mary's canal, one of the world's busiest waterways, connects the upper and lower lakes of the Great Lakes chain and feeds to the steel mills of the east the vast stores of ore from the iron ranges of the north.

Bridge tender Albert Penman, 56, a veteran of 15 years at his job said it might be two or three days before normal river traffic could be resumed but later amended this to say it was "pretty hard to tell" when this could be done.

Soldiers at the fort were routed out of barracks and extra guards posted at the bridge which is just above the great Soo locks.

Railway men and military authorities prepared at once to begin the tremendous task of raising the locomotive and the two cars out of the river so that vessel traffic could resume.

It would first be necessary to cut portions of the broken 165-foot span apart in order to free the other span, of similar size.

Patrolman E. H. Anderson said at police headquarters that there had been "talk" of sabotage but that this had been discredited because the bridge had been "very well guarded."

"I don't think sabotage was possible," Anderson said.

Rain was falling as the freight train—40 to 50 cars loaded with paper from the mills of Canada, pulpwood, steel rails and miscellaneous freight — proceeded out onto the bridge. Suddenly, said bridge tender Penman, the north span started sagging.

"Then it went down, slowly," Penman said. "I stood there watching it. The locomotive went with it. Two of the fellows crawled up the bridge but the other two, I guess, drowned."

SHELBY COUNCIL EMPLOYS FIFTH CITY FIREMAN

Councilmen Also Renew Pact To Give Sharon Township Fire Protection.

SHELBY—City council authorized the addition of a fifth fireman to the Shelby fire department Monday night during its regular semi-monthly session at city hall.

Mayor W. R. Morris is expected to make the appointment as soon as he returns from a 10-day vacation trip. He and his wife left on the trip following the council session.

Council authorized the addition of the fireman after Mayor Morris pointed out that the state industrial relation board at Columbus had criticized the city for working firemen here more than the 72-hour week set up under the state code.

If the city had not added another man to the department, Fire Chief Eugene Schull would have been subject to arrest and a fine of $500. Chief Schull also recommended the addition of another fireman.

Mayor Morris will make the appointment from an eligible list certified by the civil service commission last month which includes Kenneth Koontz, Arthur Bowser and Russell Adam.

A plat of land known as the Morris field was approved as presented in a resolution. The Jackson township land was recently annexed to the city.

Council confirmed the appointment of H. L. McCormic as a junior patrolman on the Shelby police department made by Mayor Morris last month.

A resolution authorizing Mayor Morris to renew a contract with Sharon township trustees to give that township fire protection was approved. The resolution set up the protection for a year at a cost of $600. The contract is the same as the one that the township holds with the city. It expires Oct. 15.

The councilmen also approved the tax rate and figures set up in the 1941-42 budget for the city by the county budget commission.

Ordinances were passed levying special assessments of $1.32 per foot front on Auburn street extension where a street improvement was finished; of $2.40 per front foot on North Fourth street for another street improvement, and of $55 per lot in the west end boulevard where a sanitary sewer was constructed.

An ordinance determining to proceed with the sanitary sewer in an alley near Tucker avenue also was approved.

Numbers were set up for Parkwood drive starting with 11 for lot 1986 and ending with 73 for lot 2530.

The councilmen also voted to prohibit parking on the east side of South Gamble street from Wall street to the bridge near the athletic field. Parking has been restricted to two hours on the west side of the street between the two points.

A petition was received and filed for the city engineer's estimates from property owners along Mack avenue from Simeon avenue on south, for a sanitary sewer.

Jack Gay Named President of Galion Chapter.

GALION—Official visit to the Galion Rotary club, Monday night, of Harry Hansen, governor of the 157th district of Rotary, brought many visitors for the dinner meeting at Hotel Talbott.

E. Hill whose resignation was read during the meeting. Hill, former superintendent of the Galion public schools, is now serving as assistant state director of education.

Regarding the ultimate goal of Rotary, he stressed the three-point program: first, that there should be a Rotary club in every community throughout the world that is able to support one; second, that every classification should be filled in every club throughout the world; third, that every Rotarian in every club throughout the world should learn to thoroughly understand and practice the ideals of Rotary.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1941

Don't let a few warm days deceive you—there'll still be need for coal.

After all, the national defense program is of more importance than which team wins the world series.

Of course Senator Wheeler's investigating committee didn't intend to make everybody want to see the "Sergeant York" picture—it merely happened that way.

Defeat of Hitler Must Come First

EXCEPT for a comparatively small minority, of which Charles A. Lindbergh may be regarded as chief spokesman, people in the United States seem to be in agreement that defeat of the Axis powers is the first essential to restoration of sane government in Europe and assurance of retaining freedom in the countries of the Western Hemisphere.

Lack of unity comes largely from differences of opinion as to how this shall be accomplished, and what part the United States should play, instead of the objective itself.

Summing up the reasons for lack of the unified effort which Americans are capable of making when they fully realize the enormity and the seriousness of the task confronting them, the following may be regarded as the most obvious:

Too much crooked thinking about the war.

Too much blind faith in dumb luck.

Too much refusal to face the issues.

Too much class and party division when there should be unity.

Too much effort by capital and labor to make profit out of a crisis.

Too much inclination to let Britain and Russia do it.

Too much catering to small minorities.

Too much inclination to sleep through the crisis, then wake up and take over when it's ended.

There may not be much left to take over if we don't wake up and support more strongly those who are bearing the heat and burden and spilling their blood. This vast, momentous war is apparently at a turning point. It may go either way, up or down, free or slave. And the decision is to a great extent in our hands.

It's time to quit milling around and striking and yapping and arguing and waiting. While we're beginning to get ready for the big push, Britain or Russia, or both, may go down. If that happens—then the United States, and what help could be enlisted from other countries in this hemisphere, would be required to carry on alone the war which is now being magnificently waged in our behalf, as well as their own, by those two nations.

The United States of America should, as quickly as possible, become one big, powerful team, focusing all its energies on winning the war NOW!

Brandeis, Constructive Liberal

MUCH of the progress which the United States of America has experienced in its century and a half of existence can be traced to the keen thinking, sound judgment and humanitarian motivation of such men as former Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who died Sunday at the age of 84, little more than two years after his retirement from the bench.

During his 23 years of service on the Supreme Court, following his appointment by President Wilson, Justice Brandeis consistently maintained the attitude which had marked his earlier law practice—a sincere interest in the welfare of his fellow-beings and an earnest desire to encourage social and economic experimentation.

While his thinking resulted in frequent alignment with supporters of Roosevelt administration policies, his opposition was also noted in the court's decision against the NRA and other New Deal legislation, showing independence of thought at all times.

The life and public service of Justice Brandeis extended through a memorable period in American and world history.

Horn-Honking After Night Games

HERE'S a brief mention of the action by Dayton's superintendent of schools, banning night football, as reported in yesterday's paper.

The conduct of celebrators after games resulted in the decision against night games.

Complaints are being made by Mansfield residents that they are disturbed by needless horn-honking after games and far into the night.

Tolerant of youthful exuberance, and of the noise necessarily associated with a football game, people living in the vicinity of the stadium are inclined to feel that they are entitled to more peace and quiet in their homes than is possible when horn-honking is carried on for a number of hours after a game ends.

And similar nuisance, it may be noted, is carried to many residence streets far removed from the stadium.

It may at least be hoped that a hint will be sufficient to result in corrective action before any more drastic steps are necessary.

Priorities and Production

A BIG business spokesman says "there is now greater honor in fulfillment than in acquirement of orders." And, he might have added, more profit.

The great battle of priorities is still raging. Everybody wants his orders filled immediately and nearly everybody seems to regard his claim on production as vital. But the world wasn't built in a day, and war orders of such magnitude will not be filled in a year.

In many cases the factories to produce the rush orders are still no more than blueprints. The government, with about $60,000,000,000 appropriated for war stuff, has not yet been able to spend more than one-fourth of the money.

It is a situation calling for calm haste, not excitement; for moderation in the placing of orders; for more distribution of orders among small factories, in small communities, that still have idle men and unused capacities.

The newly elected Miss America loves thick steaks and mashed potatoes, and aspires to become a movie star—but she'll finally have to choose.

Headline, "Washington Freezes Coke Price," seems to have nothing to do with "the pause that refreshes."

The new tax bill could be popularized by rigging up a jackpot attachment.

Beware of Meekies!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ALL FORMS of egotism—including my own!—are a pain in the neck to the unfortunate bystander. But as a guaranteed, goat-getting graft, nothing can match the Meekie racket, either in pestiness or profit.

Meaning, of course, those mealy-mouthed mumblers who specialize in belittling themselves.

After one experience with a Meekie, you can usually detect the breed at a glance. Meekies invariably lurk in the darkest corners at parties, enshrouded in a Heavy Silence which is just about as easy to ignore as a red hot dose of hives. There may be fifty people at that party, all whooping hilariously, but the concentrated gloom of one Meekie will offset their joint rumpus. Like Ye Ancient Mariner, said Meekie fixes you with his baleful glare, and henceforth you're a gonner.

Having gloomed onto you, all Meekies pull an identical line. Without wasting another second, they start telling you what Terrible Failures they are . . . 'n' how they make a Mess of Everything . . . 'n' Nobody Understands them . . . 'n' Everyone Absolutely Despises them . . . until Life has become so Ghastly they Wish They Were Dead. But of course, if they had Someone Like you to advise them . . . some strong, clever, resourceful, understanding, sympathetic person like you . . . why, everything would be Different.

Which tribute naturally makes you feel at least ten points smarter than God Himself. So, before you know it, you're gushing advice and affection like a busted fire hose and probably handing 'em your last dime. Never dreaming that you're being taken for the well-known buggy ride.

For cynical as the statement sounds, stranger, that's exactly what is happening. Of all schemes devised to promote and play upon human vanity, none can compare with the Meekie's. Here are utterly ruthless human beings with but one desire — to obtain attention for themselves. They haven't the slightest consideration for your time or obligations. They don't give a hoot for you or your advice. They simply WANT AN AUDIENCE. And they get it by the ancient technique of soaping some sap.

But surely there are people—nice, sincere people—who honestly regret their weaknesses and desire help.

There are indeed. But such people do not make a racket of it. They tell their trouble, listen to your solution, and then proceed to follow or reject it.

Not so the Meekie. The last thing the Meekie desires is to be cured of anything, anyhow. But his neurotic soul craves attention with the wolfish avidity of a starving animal. Not just a normal amount of attention, but gobs 'n' gobs of de luxe, exclusive consideration, which, short of committing murder or throwing a fit, he is unable to obtain by conventional methods. So he becomes a Meekie — throws himself upon your mercy, grovels in your pathway. And you fall for it—.

For who can resist a halo!

P. S.—Why am I writing in this sour and resentful mood? Because, partner, I can never resist halos myself! And every Meekie, from here to Capetown, has my number!

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"Maybe he is a sultan's son. . . . but that ain't where the diaper goes!"

Timely Editorial

Increasing Discontent.

The pains are constantly getting worse instead of better. We refer, of course, to the indigestion that the greedy Adolf Hitler is suffering from having devoured too many independence-loving European countries.

The methods that he is taking to relieve the pain only aggravate it. Was a German officer shot from ambush in France? All right, kill three hostages. That will show them. But the next day, four more Germans are shot down! Are the Yugoslavs rebellious? Throw them in prisons and concentration camps! But you've got to catch them first and they're off in the mountains staging guerilla raids.

The revolts are so persistent and so widespread that even the repressive Herr Goebbels has despaired of trying to cover them all up.

Can it be that the seething populace of conquered Europe will engage the attention of enough soldiers to form that "second front" that the military strategists say is necessary before Hitler can be conquered?—Akron Beacon-Journal.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"A. W. O. L."

It is not, as is generally believed, an abbreviation of "absent without official leave."

In the army, all leave is official—must be—if it isn't official, it isn't leave.

The doughboy, therefore, is either absent with leave or absent without leave, in which latter case he is A. W. O. L.—and in trouble too.

The definition of A. W. O. L., hence, is "absent without leave."

One of the early appearances of the abbreviation A. W. O. L. is in handwriting, on a regimental report dated Aug. 31, 1849, and in print, on a similar form, dated Dec. 31, 1853.

The expression "absent without leave" appears in Army Regulations, 1821.

Grab Bag

One-Minute Test.

1. The host at dinner sits at the head of the table when guests are entertained. Which is the head of the table?

2. What type of bird is the Scotch woodcock?

3. Who wrote "The Old Oaken Bucket"?

Hints on Etiquette.

It is rude to keep a woman waiting in a public place. It is permissible for a man to ask a girl to meet him there if the meeting is during or immediately after business hours. He should try to be there before her, but if that is impossible, he should apologize for his lateness.

Words of Wisdom.

Gratuitous violence in argument betrays a conscious weakness of the cause, and is usually a signal of despair.—Junius.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. Generally nearest the window side or opposite the main entrance to the dining room.

2. It is not a bird, but a name given to a slice of buttered toast garnished with chopped eggs and anchovies.

3. Samuel Woodworth.

As Others See It

Had You Thought of This?

A great many things which are blamed on bad luck should be credited to human stupidity.—Ohio State Journal.

Getting Acquainted.

When our preacher first came here he talked as if most sinners were outside the church, but he has gotten to know us members better.—Kansas City Times.

Daily Bible Thought

And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.—1 Cor. 13:2.

Pointed Paragraphs

There is no good substitute for honesty.

Success seldom comes to the man who isn't expecting it.

He is a wise man who never argues with people of whom he is fond.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Franking Priviiege Much Abused To Help Spread Nazi Propaganda

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Last year U. S. taxpayers shelled out a total of $1,217,346 of their hard-earned money to reimburse the post office for handling a total of 45,128,977 pieces of free mail sent by members of congress.

But now it develops that part of this money was spent to mail literature for an organization which the justice department charges was financed by German agents. In other words, the unknowing and innocent taxpayer joined with Mr. Hitler's boys in helping certain isolationist congressmen flood the country with propaganda.

This was why such a hot game of hide-and-go-seek was played in the America First Committee and in the basement of congress in an effort to dispose of mail bags crammed with franked propaganda belonging to Representative Ham Fish. The bags had been whisked out of the Make Europe Pay War Debts committee just before the justice department raided it.

Congressman Fish's franked envelopes escaped the FBI raiders, but the mail bags of several other congressmen did not. Most of these congressmen had voted for an act requiring everyone who distributed propaganda for a foreign country to register with the state department. Yet these congressmen appeared to have violated the spirit of the act for which they voted by loaning their sacred free mailing privilege to an organization deliberately in the business of foreign propaganda.

Furthermore, they appeared to have violated another law passed by their own distinguished body in 1906: namely Title 39, Section 335, which provides:

"It shall be unlawful to lend said frank or permit its use by any committee, organization, or association, or permit its use by any person for the benefit or use of any committee, organization or association."

And yet whole truckloads of mail bearing the frank of Senators Nye, Wheeler, Worth Clark of Idaho, Reynolds of North Carolina, the late Senator Lundeen of Minnesota, and various congressmen have been turned over to the America First Committee, the Make Europe Pay War Debts Committee, the Steuben Society and other isolationist or pro-German organizations.

History of Franking.

NEXT TIME you get a letter from your congressman or any branch of the government, it might be well to know that this right of free mail goes back to 1775 when the Continental Congress resolved "That all letters to and from the delegates of the United Colonies, during the sessions of congress, pass and be carried free of postage, the members being engaged upon their honor not to frank or enclose any letters but their own."

This privilege was extended to some other branches of the early American government in 1782, namely the commander-in-chief of the armies, the heads of the departments of finance, of war, and of foreign affairs, and members of congress "while actually attending congress."

The franking privilege today has been stretched a long way since then. In fact post office authorities compare today's indiscriminate farming out of congressional franks to a similar situation in 1867 when Postmaster General Randall demanded that the franking privilege be withdrawn from congress. Reporting to President Andrew Johnson, he said:

"I am compelled again to call attention to the gross frauds perpetrated upon the department by the violation of the franking privilege in almost all parts of the country. The facsimile franks of different members of congress are freely used to circulate obscene books and papers, lottery circulars, business cards, and to cover all kinds of business and domestic correspondence of persons not authorized by law to frank mailable matter."

As a result the franking privilege for congressmen was abolished in 1873, then reinstated in 1875, and broadened again in 1906—though at all times it has provided that a congressman can circulate from the Congressional Record that portion of it written by himself.

Wise Men of Zion.

DESPITE the very clear wording of the law, the franked envelopes of Congressman Ham Fish have turned up containing an advertisement of the Protocols of the Wise Men of Zion, and damning the Jews. Unquestionably Ham Fish did not write this anti-Semitic literature or even mail it. But his franked envelopes were farmed out somehow or other for this purpose.

Again, Senator Nye's frank has been used to circulate a speech by Theo H. Hoffmann, national chairman of the Steuben Society of America. Nye got around the provision that the speech must be written by himself, by inserting Hoffmann's speech in the Congressional Record.

Again, when Senator Wheeler sent out his much publicized postcard regarding war, which found its way into the army camps, he simply turned his frank over to the America First committee. They mailed a million copies, saving $10,000 worth of postage. Yet the law of 1906 is clear that it is "unlawful to lend said frank or permit its use by any committee, organization or association."

Again, at a meeting addressed by Donald Shea of the National Gentile League, envelopes bearing the frank of Senator Wheeler were distributed in the audience and listeners were urged to address and mail them — postage free.

And in Los Angeles last summer a meeting was held in Dr. Richter's Health Cafeteria to organize pickets against Wendell Willkie when he came to speak at the Hollywood Bowl. Those who attended the Richter meeting were given the franked envelopes of Congressman Day of Illinois containing his speech of June 15 critical of the British. All the audience had to do was address the envelope and send it —postage free—to anyone.

Prize violator of the franking privelege, however, was the late Senator Lundeen, whose speeches were written by George Sylvester Viereck, a paid agent of Germany, and who then turned over his congressional frank to have the speeches mailed all over the country—postage free.

No wonder even placid Postmaster Frank Walker is getting stirred up as to whether he should do something about the frankling privelege. For he has the power—and no one can question it—to refuse mail from any congressman suspected of violating the law.

So far the worried Mr. Walker has not used it.

Missing Forks.

THE hospitality of the people in the Louisiana maneuever area was warm and generous, and fried chicken was dished out to the troops everywhere.

The boys loved it and never failed to turn back an empty plate. But one thing mystified the Northerners. This was that their Southern hosts ate the chicken with their fingers.

At a large open air dinner party given by Mrs. Mickey, popular hostess of Lake Charles, one young Northerner asked a charming local girl about the matter.

"There is no mystery about it," she replied with a mischievous smile. "During the war between the states you damyankees stole all our silver."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Years ago a group of enterprising youngsters began infesting the back stage confines of Broadway theaters, badgering the actors into giving them their laundry business. They called at the actors' dressing rooms to pick up the wash and they delivered it.

Several of these young blokes became starry-eyed and determined on theatrical careers of their own. One of them died a few months ago. He was Sam Harris, among the most successful producers Broadway has known. Al Wood, another, has indulged in many a successful adventure along Broadway. Harris also was a prize fight manager in his time, and the mentor of Terrible Terry McGovern.

ALL of this leads one naturally to wonder what other of Broadway's better producers do, or once did, with their off time.

Lawrence Langner, Theater Guild producer and director, was and is one of the country's top patent lawyers . . . Maurice Werthim, also of the Guild, is a Wall Street financier . . . Dwight Deere Wiman manufactures plows . . . H. I. Chanin, who produced "Green Pastures," is a big real estate man and owns many Broadway theaters and hotels. The Chanin Building bears his name.

Among other outside interests of the theater's producers are the architectural and scenic designing activities of Lee Simonson . . . Jed Harris used to be a press agent . . . Guthrie McClintic, married to Katharine Cornell, was a stage manager and an actor . . . George Abbott was an actor and gave a great performance in "Hell Bent For Heaven" . . . Brock Pemberton at one time was drama critic for the now defunct New York Mail, and Russel Crouse wrote a column for the New York Post that was called "Left At The Post." Crouse also was press agent for the Theater Guild and wrote several books on unsolved murders.

A BROADWAY tradition is that you never see any smut in a play produced by John Golden, an astute showman. Years ago somebody wrote a series of biographical articles for the Saturday Evening Post about Golden and in it stated that Golden's plays were always devoid of offensive lines and therefore a safe place to take your sister or your mother. This legend of purity became so real that now Golden wouldn't dare produce an offensive play, even if he knew it would make money. "It's a tag I'm stuck with," he told me once "and I'll have to go along as I am."

Golden, himself a composer and an author, despite his "purity" label, has been doing as well as he has ever done. He has currently the outstanding comedy of last season "Claudia" which is still running strong, and before this he had "Skylark" with Gertrude Lawrence, a star whose presence is usually a certificate of success.

A Farmer's Diary

'Sook, Bossy'

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

EVEN after she had been milked, the Jersey cow lowed in her stall as though she might be thirsty. I opened the stable door and allowed her, as usual, to go to the pond to drink. She hurried out as though anything were better than to be shut inside, then dawdled, reluctantly.

Usually at the pond, she will touch her dark muzzle to the cool surface, slosh a little with her long tongue, as though becoming accustomed to the temperature of the cool spring water, then relax and drink long and slowly until completely satisfied. Now she lowered her head a moment, sipped a little, and shook her head vigorously from side to side, looking wistfully down across the level stubble to where our neighbor's herd of twenty cattle pasture.

Her hairy tubelike ears were set forward to catch the slightest sound from that direction. The wind blew from the south, and to catch the scent of the herd, she held her dark moist nose high and breathed heavily with wide, distended nostrils. Her eyes, usually soft and darkly liquid, had changed to hard, purposeful expectancy.

I stood beside her sleek head and stroked her face to quiet her, but she passed up my friendly solicitations with a sniff, and disdained my very presence.

Then, with a noise as if from some deep cavern, she opened her mouth and bellowed until it echoed loudly from the slope. As she stopped to listen, I heard a high pitched, vigorous answer from the pasture — an answer supercharged with bovine meaning, for when it reached Betsy's ears, she seemed both disturbed and wonderfully satisfied.

After this, I led her up the steep path above the road to her favorite pasture in our soybean field. Hardly had she reached the crest of the bank when, in spite of my protests, she turned about, faced south and bellowed mightily again. Before the sound had ceased that same strong, welcome answer reached her sensitive listening ears. The tall oaks of the valley trembled with the sound.

Together, Betsy and I reached the center of the bean patch and I drove a stake where the stalks are green and tender. The tethering chain was long, and when I held it close to her head with both my hands, she gave a sudden lunge so that my grip seemed useless and the metal links burned blisters on my palms. Fortunately I came upon a knot and held the stubborn creature at bay.

With satisfaction, I looped the chain securely around the stake and watched her greedily crop the lush soybeans with apparent relish. I figured she was securely tethered for all day and trekked home through the potato patch.

Scarcely had I reached the barn bridge when I heard a bellow and the rattle of a chain. Betsy's bovine urge had burst the bounds of decent conventions. I turned in time to see her leap, with a flirt of the heels, clear over the rail fence into my neighbor's pasture—in open ignorance of the sign which reads: "Cross Bull—Keep Out!"

BLACK BOOM + + + + + +

By Paul David Preston

CHAPTER XX

"Git up there and tell 'em Doc!" a red-faced man was insisting. "Oil's brought money into this county and you know it. Good money; done a powerful lot of good. They don't appreciate it. Git up there, man!"

Dal frowned. But he was a young man of commanding presence; half a head taller than most, broad of shoulder, fine brown eyes and a chin that bespoke strength. The people as a whole admired him. And the newcomers, the oil boomers, had given him instant prosperity in this town, keeping him running night and day. He felt a deep sense of gratitude for that. Even now he could spot men whose bodies he had doctored or in whose families he had served. He wished he hadn't challenged Martin Deale: wished he had kept his mouth shut. But—a doctor has emotions same as anybody else, he knew.

The applause grew. Men were escorting Dallas Tower to the truck. Martin Deale, pale with anger, was literally forced off the improvised rostrum—he stepped down to avoid being pushed—and all in a moment young Dallas Tower stood up there looking down on the crowd It took a half minute for people to cease shouting and whistling and applauding, and during that interval Dal tried to size up his audience. Quietest of all, he saw, were the negroes gathered near Mrs. Mayfield's steps. Old Jason was out front of them, bareheaded. And on the outskirts other people were still coming, some running, some climbing onto the yard fence and some even into the huge trees whose bottom limbs curved low He could smell the mock oranges and their sweet contrast to the oily pipe machinery was no greater than that of the blooming crepe myrtle against the derrick's harsh form.

"Ladies and gentlemen," Dal began, self consciously. "I must—"

"Louder!"

A man on the outskirts was determined to hear. Dal responded.

"Friends, this is most extraordinary, I assure you. It would seem that we are assembled to fight about something. But that isn't so At least I can see no cause for any ill feeling. I haven't the faintest idea what prompted this meeting. but—"

"Pour it on 'em, Doc' E-YOW!" a big mustachioed Texan, obviously out to see a good time regardless of issues involved, shouted that A lot of folk were grinning. But the Guardianship delegates were not These latter gentlemen had seen their own meeting pre-empted and all they could do was stand politely by.

Dallas glanced down at Lillian Mayfield. Thad Monroe had an arm protectively around her shoulder. Both looked up at him. So did Baby Doll, and even Martin Deale and Dr. Watkins and others he knew. Everything seemed so unreal from up here, he wasn't used to gazing at mobs from five feet about them. He swallowed determinedly and went on.

"I have but little to say, ladies and gentlemen' But if I must venture my personal opinion I will say that the thing for all of us to do is go home and mind our own affairs Before us stands a new oil derrick. Conceivably it is out of place on so beautiful a lawn, so lovely and so beloved an old residential street as this is. But I can assure you that business will never stop before sentiment.

"Business my friends, makes sentiment possible. I mean that without somebody's earlier business efforts and acumen, this beautiful street would never have been possible in the first place

"Now in this modern year comes a new business surge It may disrupt the established order somewhat but it will bring new beauties, new feelings for good, new sentiments better than the old New money in a community is always good!"

"That's the stuff, Doc! You tell 'em!"

Dallas felt the incomparable lift of the actor, the subtle sense of knowing that he had his crowd.

"Of course oil and oil wells are somewhat dirty. And if there are to be wells on our old streets, certain beauties will have to suffer at first. But new streets can be laid out. New homes erected, with new landscaping and greater comforts. Even now, as you all know, five new residential subdivisions are being opened in the wooded area north and east of town.

"I think Rangeville is destined to grow more and more. I like to call it my town even though I am a new arrival, for you have accepted me and I like all of you, and in a measure I speak for all the newcomers here. We want no hard feelings, we want only the right to work and share and prosper as we deserve. My friend, Martin Deale, has mentioned—"

Somebody laughed derisively at that. At least a few people knew of the two young men's earlier differences. Dal paused only a second.

"—has mentioned burglars and robbers and such. Regrettably, this is true, but it can surely be controlled. Our population has been so suddenly expanded that we lack police force to cope with new requirements. We can quickly remedy that. If we are destined to be an industrial town, I say let's make it an orderly one."

He was speaking easily now, calmly and distinctly. He remembered an old injunction from college days—when talking to people, look at them. He moved his head slowly so as to gaze directly into the eyes of those nearest. He paused a moment, looking at Lillian.

She lifted a hand involuntarily and nodded slightly as if to encourage him. Thad Monroe turned to her, then slowly back to Dal. She did not notice. Her face was strained She was with Dal, speaking with him, sharing here what he felt.

"The thing that is happening around us, my friends, is sure to breed some heartaches. Some people are going to get rich, indeed some already have Some others will prosper moderately even though they engage in no oil ventures at all. But still another group—and I suspect many of them are here before me—are freezing up against the whole oil boom and trying to stay aloof from it You are the ones who will suffer most. The boom is bigger than you are. The boom is bigger than sentiment, or tradition, or any old-fashioned way of life. And it is not a mark of disrespect to the old-fashioned things to replace them Business, I tell you again, is like that Business makes its own path whether it be a railroad across a man's farm or an oil line down a residential street"

"My goodness!" Murmured Baby Doll Mayfield.

"Sounds like a professor, all right, Thad Monroe murmured back, near to Lillian. "The boy's got what it takes."

Lillian looked quickly at her fiance, then turned away again to watch Dal. Again she nodded a little deeply impressed, and again Thad observed it Thad started to say something more but changed his mind; he began looking down meditatively at his finger nails and his face slowly acquired an expression of infinite sadness Nobody was observing him, though; Dal Tower was speaking again, and was about through now.

"—all of progress is like that, entailing some distress We must adapt ourselves and go forward with it Oil people are not money-grabbers, and it's an insult to say they are!"

He stopped abruptly, and the applause was loud and genuine when he jumped down. He was rather flushed now People pressed close, but as he came near to Thad and Lillian, Martin Deale stepped up to him

"Look here, Tower, I am fed up with your trying to make a fool of me and the principles I uphold!" Martin was pompous about it, and tight with anger. "Why you forced yourself into this is—"

"And I'm a little fed up with you, Martin!" Dal came back. 'What I said wasn't personal Why do you keep your feelings out on a limb?"

Fifty or more people heard this little private clash "Sh-h-h!" somebody commanded silence, at once. Necks craned Lillian looked distressed and Thad Monroe was about to intervene, but Martin gave him no time

"To hell with that!" Martin snapped, in uncontrolled fury now "You're a contemptible intruder who—"

He never quite finished. Because as he spoke this time, his hand moved quickly to his pocket and came out with a gun.

Bang!

He shot when barely six feet from Dallas Tower.

But in that same instant a girl had leaped forward!

Sound of the pistol shot was like an electric release on emotions in this throng.

Instantly everyone was stirring, crowding in, surging back, pushing sideways, just plain moving. A woman's voice made a sharp hysterical scream. Two dogs started barking.

"Look out! Look out!"

The shout was a quite unnecessary warning from some man who had stood near Martin Deale and Dallas Tower. Most people at hand there cringed automatically although they couldn't actually flee because of the press of folk behind them. A few men, with experience at such doings, fell prone.

But there were no more bullets. The gun fired just once.

"Thass Mistuh Mahtin Deale!" a negro woman shrieked from her perch on a side fence. "He done tuk out a gun and shot somebody!"

Jason Weems had left the colored people back near the Mayfield porch and was rocking in his crippled gait toward the excitement. As he moved he muttered a prayer over and over, "Lawd in Heaben, don't git too mad with these white folks. They ain't fully theyselves. Don't let nobody die, Lawd, please Suh!"

But an oil field roustabout who had been watching things from a point 20 feet up the derrick ladder was suddenly more profane. "Good jumpin damn, Ike!" he called to a companion. "Some fool's killed a woman!'

For no apparent reason two men started a fist fight down by Mrs. Mayfield's front gate. Immediately a dozen or more men were in it, and not one of them was quite certain what the fight was about. Part of the crowd surged over that way now.

"Stand back! Give her air! Stand back' Back, everybody!"

That command was repeated by men nearest the point of major excitement.

"Where is the sheriff?" another voice kept saying "Isn't there a single officer in this crowd? My god!'

"Gangway! Gangway!" This came from four men who were carrying out a woman in a blue dress, her form utterly limp Instantly she was the center of attention, a knot of 40 or 50 people moving with her and her carriers all the way across the broad lawn to an elm tree. There they placed her on the ground and began fanning her

"That ain't the one shot," somebody explained "This one just fainted. It's Mrs. McDavid, ain't it?"

The hullabaloo seemed to increase. Men and boys were running aimlessly now. Several little children began to cry, and a few women as well. Some men were cursing. The fist fight had resolved into a stupid pushing, shoving spree, its participants all trying to talk at once and all accomplishing nothing.

Old Judge Brookfield clambered back up onto the truck bed, held up both hands again like a campaign speaker and tried earnestly to do some good

"Gentle-men! Gentle-men!" he pleaded. But this mob seemed to hold no gentlemen now, and but few gentlewomen Pent up emotions were somehow expressing themselves all around.

He clapped his hands loudly—slap, slap, slap. "Everybody just calm down!" he shouted. "The trouble is over!" Quiet down, friends. There is no need for all this!"

If they didn't hear him at least they began to see him Old Judge Brookfield, whom many of these folk had elected to office regularly for 30 years before he retired from a judgeship. A staunch, strong-looking old politician. His very poise, his impressive size and unruffled dignity, began to do what his words could not He wasn't excited He wasn't fighting or cursing or shoving or shrieking. Maybe he had something to tell them, some news; let's listen. Sh-h-h-h-h, stop that and shut up, and let's see what he's saying

As to the actors who had precipitated the main excitement here, they were now the quietest of the throng.

Martin Deale, hot-tempered at best and nursing a grudge of suspicion and jealousy against Dal Tower anyway, had plainly drawn his pistol on angry impulse. Nevertheless, a gun is a gun; a shooting is a shooting whether premeditated or not, and any dead victim just as dead. The shot in this mob might have injured or killed anybody.

When he shot so quickly, Martin saw immediately the mistake that he had made. A girl had leaped in front of Dal Tower!

"Oh-h-h-h!" It was a man's groan of hysteria. Martin's arm seemed to freeze. He couldn't have shot again if he had tried, for he was too appalled, watching the results of his move.

Presently—it seemed like an hour in the moment of shock there—somebody reached out and took the gun from Martin's hand. He never knew who it was. Life was just a whirl of bodies and sounds before him. All at once he was trembling, sick with realization of what he had done. Somebody had his arm He turned, his face strained, mouth wide open as if trying to utter something. Thad Monroe was holding him.

"Mart' Mart!" Thad was equally distressed. "Why did you have to do it? My god, Mart! . . . I stopped you from that once! Why did you have—take it easy, Mart! We'll work it out. Take it easy!"

The gesture of friendship, slight as it was, broke through to Martin Deale's goodness. The boy who had been lonely at heart and hadn't known it, who was too inhibited by fearing and too introspective to understand a lot of things, suddenly leaned against Thad Monroe's shoulder to sob in tragic abandon

"Look at him belly!" some hot head in the crowd nearby exclaimed. "He'd oughta be hung!"

"You're a fool!" snapped Thad Monroe. "And get back! Get back, or I'll let you have it with his own gun. My gosh, if everybody isn't going crazy!"

The minutes of crying was the best thing Martin could have done. It relaxed the physical and emotional tension so that he could regain a semblance of self-control.

"I must see her!" he said, tremulously after a short interval He turned from Thad, but clung to his coat like the scared boy he was "I must see her and tell her!"

He saw Lillian Mayfield turn to him a moment. She wasn't four feet away. But men began lifting the wounded girl and Martin called out again.

He and Thad followed the men carrying Baby Doll to the house. Lillian came to walk by Martin. She did not speak; she just looked at the two boys' faces for a moment and saw Thad shake his head as if telling her not to say anything. There was still too much confusion and noise around them all anyway. Part of the crowd followed the wounded girl and Dr. Watkins. Lillian saw that the man who had Baby Doll's shoulder and who was holding her head straight was Dal Tower. He was very pale, but he was calm. Lillian ran then to walk with her mother, a few steps ahead.

Negroes made way for them at the porch. Jason Weems had taken charge. Both tall front doors were open wide and he hobbled on in ahead of the others, then he turned back to cut quickly behind those carrying the wounded girl When Thad and Lillian and Martin were in, Jason blocked the entrance.

COUNTY DRAFT BOARDS READY TO FILL CALLS

Officials Here Have 3,600 More Names To Go Before Re-checking Lists.

With enough men already examined and approved to fill their October quota of 129 selectees, Richland county selective service boards are in a better position to meet their calls for men during the rest of 1941 than most of the boards in northern Ohio

While some of the boards in larger cities have gone through their entire lists of registrants, the boards here still have approximately 3,600 numbers to go before they must start over their lists again

Board 1, serving the west side of the city, has had to draw heaviest on its list of registrants to fill its quotas Men with numbers up to 2,200 in that district have been called for examinations, about two-thirds of the total number registered

Board 2 serving the eastern half of Mansfield and all of Madison township has called registrants with numbers up to 1 800 Board 3 has gone down the list to 1 900

The three boards have more than 9 500 men registered and have drawn 5 900 numbers in their quest of eligible men who are physically fit

Board clerks anticipate trouble this winter however if the calls continue as heavy as they were this month Dropping registrants past 28 from their eligible lists left fewer prospective 1-A registrants near the end of the lists.

When they have gone through their lists once the boards have orders to check their classifications a second time and to induct men whose status may have changed since the first classification

Breakfast, lunch, dinner. A place to live, clothes to wear; YOUR NEWSPAPER. You take them pretty much for granted—just because they're the very things no one can do without and enjoy a well balanced life. But skip a meal—get locked out of the house—have your clothes borrowed from the hickory limb while you take a swim—forget to bring home YOUR NEWSPAPER—and you experience a hollowness, a sense of loss no substitute can fill!

Because our mental needs are equally as important as our physical needs, the newspaper becomes part of our daily sustenance. It tells the truth about what's going on near and far. Everything that happens everywhere in the world happens before your very eyes in the columns of the newspaper you read. Scientific discovery. Home making. How to be fashionable, healthy and money-wise. Sport. Finance. What makes them "tick" becomes assimilated knowledge for all who read a newspaper.

A vital part of the community in which it functions too, the newspaper employs many of your neighbors, from private-office executives to newsboys whisking copies to your door-step. It leads you to the stores that tell in their advertising what they have to sell so you can maintain a satisfying standard of living.

Like food, shelter and clothing, YOUR NEWSPAPER is something you take for granted. But only in America is the newspaper still the unfettered organ of a Free Press. GEN. JOHNSON: Finds U. S. Plane Output 'Over Hump'

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — "The Fight Goes On" is the title of the president's magazine series in Colliers recounting his administration. One would expect to find that "the fight" was one for American rearmament and defense. But as each successive issue is published, it becomes more and more apparent that such is not the fight Mr. Roosevelt has in mind in this series at least.

Johnson

This fight seems to be to discredit and punish all who have not supported all his policies—both foreign and domestic. Especially as to his unplanned, belated and inept effort at rearmament, he says there was a "minority" in opposition.

"Although they were a minority they formed a very powerful group * * * had large funds at their disposal for propaganda purposes * * * had support of some of the largest newspapers and newspaper chains * * * could command the services of a handful of United States senators who knew they had the power of filibuster.

"This group included the defeatists * * * the appeasers * * * some business men and financiers who urged that Americans could do business with Hitler and make fat profits * * * included all of the Bundists, Fascists and, before the war between Russia and Germany, all the subversive Communists:" (Where are those subversive Communists now?)

"The majority of American people, however has become thoroughly convinced of the fallacy—to say nothing of the immorality and degradation—of these arguments."

Truth of the matter is that many who have disagreed with the president, particularly on defense and rearmament were advocating the steps on which he is now crediting himself, long before, years before he was willing to heed.

Proof of their correctness and his error is that he is now, step by reluctant step following their advice on industrial mobilization and all-out preparedness—months and years late.

That is not of much importance. The important thing is to get a unified effort of all our talent. The president's principal concern seems not so much the war but Andy Jackson's political formula "to reward all his friends and punish all his enemies." Many great men have had political dog-houses, but it is doubtful whether any ruler or dictator ever enjoyed a more populous dog-house than F. D R.

He never forgets and he never forgives and in his more mellow moments, he boasts of this. It sticks out of every chapter in these memoirs. In his opinion this seems to be his personal war and this country his personal barony.

Past services to him and his cause cannot survive in his heart one single personal difference. Maybe it is right. Maybe it is the only way to run a country in war time. Washington didn't do it and neither did Napoleon but candor compels the observation that when they didn't, they usually regretted it.

To the precise contrary seems to be the method of Hitler, Stalin and as I recall was the method of the old man of the mountains, the curse of the Crusaders. Just the same it doesn't seem to be a good American method.

Correction: In a recent column I said that at the organization of America First, Lessing Rosenwald was its chairman and promptly resigned. He tells me that he was an original member but not the chairman and promptly resigned. I take him at his word and gladly correct this error.

JOB BENEFITS TO EASE WORK LAY-OFFS HERE

250 Make Application For Payments; They Continue For Four Months.

Fear that the lay-off of a thousand Mansfield workers within the past two weeks may throw a tremendous load upon Mansfield and Richland county relief rolls was eased today when it was pointed out that the workers can obtain unemployment compensation for at least four months.

C. W Handley, district manager of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, announced that approximately 250 of the workers had already made application for their benefits.

Relief officials said that most of the furloughed workers would have until mid-January to find new work or to return to their own jobs. They doubted that relief expenditures would be needed unless it was to supplement unemployment benefits not large enough to support large families.

Westinghouse officials announced last week that an additional 300 persons would be furloughed because materials needed for production were impossible to get because of priority regulations. The preceding week, the company furloughed 700 workers.

Handley said there was no cause for alarm over the increase of 250 persons on the compensation rolls. He explained that the applicants had already applied for aid from the unemployment service for jobs or training for defense jobs.

"At present," said Handley, "we can handle all applicants wishing to be trained as skilled defense workers. We have on hand more than 250 requests from manufacturers for persons who have completed our defense training courses."

Handley said that most of the jobs offered trained workers were in this area but admitted that a few were in other industrial centers of the state where defense workers are needed badly.

The average amount which the furloughed workers may expect from the unemployment compensation office is about $14 per week, according to Handley. He explained that the benefit payment was based on the worker's previous salary, length of employment and family needs

Mansfield police are only amateurs when it comes to the art of burglary. Yesterday when three members forgot keys to their offices and desks, they spent almost a half hour trying to pick the locks. Even though they used a patented lock picker they were unable to open the locks. Finally the patrolmen went home and got their keys and the wheels of justice began to grind again.

YEAR-END TO SEE RATE OF 2,500 A MONTH

OPM Officials Predicts Steady Increase In Production 'From Now On.'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—United States warplane production should reach 2,500 military craft monthly by the end of 1941, a responsible defense production official said today.

September's new high of 1,914 delivered military planes—including training as well as combat types—was not a chance production spurt, office of production management officials said, but a token that the nation's plane producers have reached their objective of sustained, increasing quantity production.

"We are definitely over the hump," an aircraft spokesman said. "I see no reason why 2,500 military planes a month should not be produced by the end of the year."

Even if output in October, November and December should not surpass but merely equal September deliveries, it was noted, the year's production would total 18,393 planes. That figure compares with the estimate of 18,000 given in February by William S. Knudsen, OPM director-general.

Frankly jubilant over the progress, OPM officials pointed out that the record was set in a 30-day month, with work interrupted by the Labor day holiday.

It was accomplished, moreover, in spite of increased emphasis on heavy long-range bombers, requested by the British in ever-increasing numbers.

OPM officials had feared that the 500-bombers-a-month program called for by President Roosevelt in May would impede the over-all production rate

The 1,914 planes delivered to the army and navy, Great Britain and China in September compared with 1,854 in August—which itself represented a record increase of 396 over the previous month—and with 742 military planes in September, 1940.

I CAN'T think of any time in recent months when the Broadwaytes had such varied and excellent film fare on the Main Stem movie menu Adventure and "fighting love" in "A Yank In The RAF" at the Roxy; comedy and charm in Deanna Durbin's new picture at the Music Hall; hard fists and hot stuff at the Capitol, where Gable and Lana Turner are burning up the screen And at the Paramount – Charles Boyer. I wonder what it is about writers that makes them erupt on the stage at the drop of a producer's hint. I mean writers like Woollcott and Sinclair Lewis and George Kaufman and Moss Hart—all of whom have been leaping from their typewriters to the footlights at every opportunity. It's immeasurably surprising, because gentlemen with pencils are traditionally supposed to despise the very breed of actor.

"In accordance with your demand," Ferguson wrote, "please be advised that the warrants for Adams, Allen, Ashland, Ashtabula, Athens and Auglaize counties payable to the old age recipients are ready for delivery to your division. It will be necessary for you to sign a receipt for the same."

UNION PROTEST CLOSES PLANT

CIO Stages Day's Walkout at Goodrich After Beating of Union Organizer.

(By Associated Press)

AKRON — The beating of a union organizer and his wife at Oaks, Pa., resulted today in a 24-hour protest walkout by CIO union members at the Akron plants of the B. F. Goodrich company as the union demanded swift action on the incident by the company.

The walkout is scheduled to end at midnight tonight. Fourteen thousand workers are idle.

The United Rubber Workers of America local issued a statement as the walkout began at the midnight change of shifts last night, declaring dissatisfaction with the company's asserted inactivity following the beating of Joseph Feinerisen, international organizer, and his wife Edna at the gates of the Oaks plant last Thursday

The union declares 15 men attacked the pair, and identified two men now awaiting a hearing at Oaks as Horace Anderson and Walter Butler, Goodrich employes. The URWA is seeking to organize a local at the Oaks plant, and Mr and Mrs Feinerisen were distributing copies of the union's organ, "The Union Rubber Worker."

LOOKS TO SUPREME COURT FOR DECISION ON TEACHER TENURE

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Kenneth C Ray, Ohio's new director of education, is anxious to have an early supreme court ruling on the constitutionality of the recently-enacted teacher tenure law, but says he is without authority to institute a test action.

"There are many interpretations of the law and no one seems to know exactly what it means," Ray said.

The statute requires school boards to grant continuing or life contracts in districts of 800 or more pupils to teachers who have completed probationary periods.

The Urbana board of education announced last week that it would not give continuing contracts to 19 teachers eligible under the law. Board Member Noble Bean said the act "makes it virtually impossible for a board to change teachers until they are 70 years of age, although teachers can come and go as they please."

Ray suggested a suit by a teacher to protect his rights under the law would be the simplest way of bringing the act's constitutionality before the courts.

"We want a system fair to both teachers and school boards," Ray said.

"If there are poor teachers, there should be proper facilities for getting rid of them, while the good teacher should be protected The final decision will have to come from the supreme court and I hope this comes as soon as possible, because at present we are hampered through lack of clarification on a number of points."

Gives 1942 Model Try-Out, Collides With His Old Car

CLEVELAND — (UP) — Robert Novotny was shopping for a new automobile so he took out a 1942 sedan, leaving his own 1936 coupe for appraisal by salesman Arthur P. Hasse

Novotny collided with another car which came suddenly from a side street. The new sedan overturned and struck a fire plug.

When Novotny crawled from the wreckage, he discovered that the other car was his own 1936 model, driven by Hasse.

COUNTY DRAFT BOARDS READY TO FILL CALLS

Officials Here Have 3,600 More Names To Go Before Re-checking Lists.

With enough men already examined and approved to fill their October quota of 129 selectees, Richland county selective service boards are in a better position to meet their calls for men during the rest of 1941 than most of the boards in northern Ohio.

While some of the boards in larger cities have gone through their entire lists of registrants, the boards here still have approximately 3,600 numbers to go before they must start over their lists again.

Board 1, serving the west side of the city, has had to draw heaviest on its list of registrants to fill its quotas. Men with numbers up to 2,200 in that district have been called for examinations, about two-thirds of the total number registered.

Board 2, serving the eastern half of Mansfield and all of Madison township, has called registrants with numbers up to 1 800 Board 3 has gone down the list to 1,900

The three boards have more than 9 500 men registered and have drawn 5,900 numbers in their quest of eligible men who are physically fit.

Board clerks anticipate trouble this winter, however, if the calls continue as heavy as they were this month. Dropping registrants past 28 from their eligible lists left fewer prospective 1-A registrants near the end of the lists.

When they have gone through their lists once the boards have orders to check their classifications a second time and to induct men whose status may have changed since the first classification.

Your Newspaper

. . . BRINGS the WORLD'S NEWS and KNOWLEDGE to YOUR HOME and COMMUNITY

Breakfast, lunch, dinner. A place to live, clothes to wear; YOUR NEWSPAPER. You take them pretty much for granted—just because they're the very things no one can do without and enjoy a well balanced life. But skip a meal—get locked out of the house—have your clothes borrowed from the hickory limb while you take a swim—forget to bring home YOUR NEWSPAPER—and you experience a hollowness, a sense of loss no substitute can fill!

Because our mental needs are equally as important as our physical needs, the newspaper becomes part of our daily sustenance. It tells the truth about what's going on near and far. Everything that happens everywhere in the world happens before your very eyes in the columns of the newspaper you read. Scientific discovery. Home making. How to be fashionable, healthy and money-wise. Sport. Finance. What makes them "tick" becomes assimilated knowledge for all who read a newspaper.

A vital part of the community in which it functions too, the newspaper employs many of your neighbors, from private-office executives to newsboys whisking copies to your door-step. It leads you to the stores that tell in their advertising what they have to sell so you can maintain a satisfying standard of living.

Like food, shelter and clothing, YOUR NEWSPAPER is something you take for granted. But only in America is the newspaper still the unfettered organ of a Free Press. The American Newspaper does and will always champion the people's cause for honest, fearless, free reporting of the truth. The American Newspaper will always sound out loud and clear, the never to be stilled VOICE OF DEMOCRACY.

GEN. JOHNSON: Finds U. S. Plane Output 'Over Hump'

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — "The Fight Goes On" is the title of the president's magazine series in Colliers recounting his administration. One would expect to find that "the fight" was one for American rearmament and defense. But as each successive issue is published, it becomes more and more apparent that such is not the fight Mr. Roosevelt has in mind in this series at least.

Johnson

This fight seems to be to discredit and punish all who have not supported all his policies—both foreign and domestic. Especially as to his unplanned, belated and inept effort at rearmament, he says there was a "minority" in opposition.

"Although they were a minority they formed a very powerful group * * * had large funds at their disposal for propaganda purposes * * * had support of some of the largest newspapers and newspaper chains * * * could command the services of a handful of United States senators who knew they had the power of filibuster.

"This group included the defeatists * * * the appeasers * * * some business men and financiers who urged that Americans could do business with Hitler and make fat profits * * * included all of the Bundists, Fascists and, before the war between Russia and Germany, all the subversive Communists:" (Where are those subversive Communists now?)

"The majority of American people, however has become thoroughly convinced of the fallacy—to say nothing of the immorality and degradation—of these arguments."

Truth of the matter is that many who have disagreed with the president, particularly on defense and rearmament were advocating the steps on which he is now crediting himself, long before, years before he was willing to heed.

Proof of their correctness and his error is that he is now, step by reluctant step following their advice on industrial mobilization and all-out preparedness—months and years late.

That is not of much importance. The important thing is to get a unified effort of all our talent. The president's principal concern seems not so much the war but Andy Jackson's political formula "to reward all his friends and punish all his enemies." Many great men have had political dog-houses, but it is doubtful whether any ruler or dictator ever enjoyed a more populous dog-house than F. D. R.

He never forgets and he never forgives and in his more mellow moments, he boasts of this. It sticks out of every chapter in these memoirs. In his opinion this seems to be his personal war and this country his personal barony.

Past services to him and his cause cannot survive in his heart one single personal difference. Maybe it is right. Maybe it is the only way to run a country in war time. Washington didn't do it and neither did Napoleon but candor compels the observation that when they didn't, they usually regretted it.

To the precise contrary seems to be the method of Hitler, Stalin and as I recall was the method of the old man of the mountains, the curse of the Crusaders. Just the same it doesn't seem to be a good American method.

Correction: In a recent column I said that at the organization of America First, Lessing Rosenwald was its chairman and promptly resigned. He tells me that he was an original member but not the chairman and promptly resigned. I take him at his word and gladly correct this error.

JOB BENEFITS TO EASE WORK LAY-OFFS HERE

250 Make Application For Payments; They Continue For Four Months.

Fear that the lay-off of a thousand Mansfield workers within the past two weeks may throw a tremendous load upon Mansfield and Richland county relief rolls was eased today when it was pointed out that the workers can obtain unemployment compensation for at least four months.

C. W. Handley, district manager of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, announced that approximately 250 of the workers had already made application for their benefits.

Relief officials said that most of the furloughed workers would have until mid-January to find new work or to return to their own jobs. They doubted that relief expenditures would be needed unless it was to supplement unemployment benefits not large enough to support large families.

Westinghouse officials announced last week that an additional 300 persons would be furloughed because materials needed for production were impossible to get because of priority regulations. The preceding week, the company furloughed 700 workers.

Handley said there was no cause for alarm over the increase of 250 persons on the compensation rolls. He explained that the applicants had already applied for aid from the unemployment service for jobs or training for defense jobs.

"At present," said Handley, "we can handle all applicants wishing to be trained as skilled defense workers. We have on hand more than 250 requests from manufacturers for persons who have completed our defense training courses."

Handley said that most of the jobs offered trained workers were in this area but admitted that a few were in other industrial centers of the state where defense workers are needed badly.

The average amount which the furloughed workers may expect from the unemployment compensation office is about $14 per week, according to Handley. He explained that the benefit payment was based on the worker's previous salary, length of employment and family needs.

Mansfield police are only amateurs when it comes to the art of burglary. Yesterday when three members forgot keys to their offices and desks, they spent almost a half hour trying to pick the locks. Even though they used a patented lock picker they were unable to open the locks. Finally the patrolmen went home and got their keys and the wheels of justice began to grind again.

Word was received from Bob Simon, former Mansfielder, that he has a part in the Billy Rose production of Odet's play, "Clash By Night," beginning rehearsals in New York. This new show stars Tallulah Bankhead and Lee Cobb. Simon is understudying Cobb and Joseph Shildkraut besides learning his own part. He says the show will probably open Nov. 15. Tonight he is playing the part of Lincoln in a big show at Madison Square Garden. In this production, "Fight For Freedom," Simon gives two parts of Lincoln's famous speech.

YEAR-END TO SEE RATE OF 2,500 A MONTH

OPM Officials Predicts Steady Increase In Production 'From Now On.'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—United States warplane production should reach 2,500 military craft monthly by the end of 1941, a responsible defense production official said today.

September's new high of 1,914 delivered military planes—including training as well as combat types—was not a chance production spurt, office of production management officials said, but a token that the nation's plane producers have reached their objective of sustained, increasing quantity production.

"We are definitely over the hump," an aircraft spokesman said. "I see no reason why 2,500 military planes a month should not be produced by the end of the year."

Even if output in October, November and December should not surpass but merely equal September deliveries, it was noted, the year's production would total 18,393 planes. That figure compares with the estimate of 18,000 given in February by William S. Knudsen, OPM director-general.

Frankly jubilant over the progress, OPM officials pointed out that the record was set in a 30-day month, with work interrupted by the Labor day holiday.

It was accomplished, moreover, in spite of increased emphasis on heavy long-range bombers, requested by the British in ever-increasing numbers.

OPM officials had feared that the 500-bombers-a-month program called for by President Roosevelt in May would impede the over-all production rate.

The 1,914 planes delivered to the army and navy, Great Britain and China in September compared with 1,854 in August—which itself represented a record increase of 396 over the previous month—and with 742 military planes in September, 1940.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I CAN'T think of any time in recent months when the Broadwayites had such varied and excellent film fare on the Main Stem movie menu. Adventure and "fighting love" in "A Yank In The RAF" at the Roxy; comedy and charm in Deanna Durbin's new picture at the Music Hall; hard fists and hot stuff at the Capitol, where Gable and Lana Turner are burning up the screen. And at the Paramount—Charles Boyer. Oh-boy-oh-boy-oh-boyer!

Kilgallen

I wonder what it is about writers that makes them erupt on the stage at the drop of a producer's hint. I mean writers like Woollcott and Sinclair Lewis and George Kaufman and Moss Hart—all of whom have been leaping from their typewriters to the footlights at every opporunity. It's immeasurably surprising, because gentlemen with pencils are traditionally supposed to despise the very breed of actor.

Some songs are sure lump-in-the-throat-bringers for me. "Somebody Loves Me" and "We Were So Young" and "Love For Sale" are a few . . . and Hildegarde's "You Will Remember Vienna" is an old one brought back to life . . . I have a hard time passing a pitchman on the street without stopping for a minute to bend an ear to his spiel. I'd probably have made a wonderful shill.

I'm glad Robert Montgomery is our naval attache in London. He should do well in the social sweepstakes, and I've always thought that more diplomatic coups were engineered over a dinner table than over a desk at 10 Downing Street . . . Why is it that California resorts have better press agents than Eastern vacation spots? They must have, because they get columns and columns of pictures of pretty girls in all the New York papers, but I've never seen a picture of Lake Placid, or other East Coast playgrounds, in the California papers.

I wonder if Alfred Hitchcock will ever go on the Good Housekeeping diet. He's the catingest man I ever saw . . . Impressionists and mimics, when they're really good, are one of my favorite forms of entertainment. I could shuttle between Billy de Wolfe and John Hoysradt all season . . . I wonder how long it will be before we start having "sugarless" days. Well, girls who are slimming won't mind that . . . I notice a lot of soldier boys offering their seats to ladies in street cars and buses . . . I wonder if many grandchildren will sit in days to come on their grandpappies' knees and pipe: "Granddaddy, what were the Brooklyn Dodgers?"

It seems so ironical that Bette Davis should have her nose bitten by a dog. And after all the benefits she's done for the Tailwaggers. . . . The only thing I can think of that's as funny as it's cracked up to be is a Hollywood story conference. I think stenographic reports of the better ones should be published . . . There is an age past which a woman should not wear a white tulle dress, but from the look of the town's dance floors, the ladies don't know it . . . Lugubrious is the word for Paul Hartman's face.

UNION PROTEST CLOSES PLANT

CIO Stages Day's Walkout at Goodrich After Beating of Union Organizer.

(By Associated Press)

AKRON — The beating of a union organizer and his wife at Oaks, Pa., resulted today in a 24-hour protest walkout by CIO union members at the Akron plants of the B. F. Goodrich company as the union demanded swift action on the incident by the company.

The walkout is scheduled to end at midnight tonight. Fourteen thousand workers are idle.

The United Rubber Workers of America local issued a statement as the walkout began at the midnight change of shifts last night, declaring dissatisfaction with the company's asserted inactivity following the beating of Joseph Feineisen, international organizer, and his wife Edna at the gates of the Oaks plant last Thursday.

The union declares 15 men attacked the pair, and identified two men now awaiting a hearing at Oaks as Horace Anderson and Walter Butler, Goodrich employes. The URWA is seeking to organize a local at the Oaks plant, and Mr. and Mrs. Feineisen were distributing copies of the union's organ, "The Union Rubber Worker."

A company spokesman said that at a meeting of a union committee with Vice President T. G. Graham yesterday, Graham declined to discharge the two men until he had investigated further.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson today surrendered to the state welfare department the right to mail old age pension checks to Ohioans.

In a letter to Thomas W. McCaw, head of the welfare department's old age assistance division, Ferguson said he was taking the action in order that checks in six counties could be mailed on time, although and in spite of the fact that McCaw's office has not complied with the federal social security laws.

"In accordance with your demand," Ferguson wrote, "please be advised that the warrants for Adams, Allen, Ashland, Ashtabula, Athens and Auglaize counties payable to the old age recipients are ready for delivery to your division. It will be necessary for you to sign a receipt for the same."

LOOKS TO SUPREME COURT FOR DECISION ON TEACHER TENURE

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Kenneth C. Ray, Ohio's new director of education, is anxious to have an early supreme court ruling on the constitutionality of the recently-enacted teacher tenure law, but says he is without authority to institute a test action.

"There are many interpretations of the law and no one seems to know exactly what it means," Ray said.

The statute requires school boards to grant continuing or life contracts in districts of 800 or more pupils to teachers who have completed probationary periods.

The Urbana board of education announced last week that it would not give continuing contracts to 19 teachers eligible under the law. Board Member Noble Bean said the act "makes it virtually impossible for a board to change teachers until they are 70 years of age, although teachers can come and go as they please."

Ray suggested a suit by a teacher to protect his rights under the law would be the simplest way of bringing the act's constitutionality before the courts.

"We want a system fair to both teachers and school boards," Ray said.

"If there are poor teachers, there should be proper facilities for getting rid of them, while the good teacher should be protected. The final decision will have to come from the supreme court and I hope this comes as soon as possible, because at present we are hampered through lack of clarification on a number of points."

Breaks Dates But Says He Loves Her

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Almost a year ago I met a man eight years my senior. He paid a lot of attention to me, which I took as a joke. But now I've fallen deeply in love with him. He has taken me to luncheons and presented me with gifts of jewelry, including a ring which he values very highly.

Here's my problem: While he is above reproach in everything else, he has a habit of standing me up on some of these luncheon engagements, (which he makes in the first place) and then apologizes. I called him up and told him I'd like to return his gifts, but he absolutely refuses to accept them.

Do you suppose he may have found out how much I really care for him? He keeps telling me, however, that he thinks a great deal of me and doesn't want anyone else but me to wear his gifts.

BROKEN-HEARTED.

When a man breaks a date with a girl, particularly one he has made himself, he usually offers some reason with his apology. Some men, however, are so lacking in the social graces that they think the excuse is sufficient. In returning his ring and gifts, you might state the reason for your action is that you object to date-breaking. Then if he confides he has been ordered to do something by his boss, instead of taking you, as proposed, to the luncheon, you might forgive and forget.

As you tell me you've learned to love this young man, in spite of his social shortcomings, it may be well to remember that any high-handed action on your part may make you unhappy.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have three boy friends who have taken me out for the past two years. Each one of them gave me a gift last Christmas, and I felt rather peculiar at not returning the compliment. My mother thinks it's all right to accept gifts from boys, but that it isn't the correct thing to give, unless there's an engagement in sight.

My girl friends give their boy friends presents, and it seems the natural thing to do on a holiday. Of course, I don't think it need be anything expensive, but just a thought to show appreciation.

Will you please tell me whether I should figure on giving my friends gifts this Christmas.

F. K.

It is always permissable to give perishable gifts to a boy, such as a box of candy of your own making or cake. And indeed there is no objection to a girl giving a more substantial present to her boy friends if it's inexpensive.

The absence of gifts on your part doesn't seem to have lessened your popularity, as they have continued to take you out for the past two years. So it probably will be safe to restrict your giving to Christmas cards, if your mother still objects to anything more substantial.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've been going with a young man for a year. He is 21 years of age and I am 19. He has a good-paying position and says we can be married soon, unless he's called in the draft. He is on defense work, so I don't believe there's much chance of that.

His parents bought a big home, which he's helping to pay for, and he says his mother wants us to live with them when we marry. I think a great deal of his family, but I've been working out ever since I was 14 years old, and I know what it is to live with other people. I want my own home, even if it's only two rooms. I think young married people should be alone.

I've saved enough money to start, and have already paid for a bedroom suite. But he has his heart in that home, as they are fixing it up so we can stay with them. Should I tell him at once that I'd rather we lived alone, or wait a while? I'm so afraid I'll lose him entirely.

A FRIEND.

There are as many different kinds of inlaws as there are trees in the forest. They vary from ministering angels to fiends incarnate. I've had hundreds of letters from young people who live happily under the same roof with their inlaws, and an equal number from other newlyweds who have had their marriage sent on the rocks through the same source.

As you fear you may lose your fiance if you decline to enter into his plans and live with his parents, don't you think it might be worth while to give it a trial? As the house is still in process of alteration, why not suggest that you have your own kitchenette, bath, and rooms. This would eliminate that fruitful cause of domestic warfare — two women fussing over one cook-stove.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

The nurse's face was quietly attentive as she came out into the hall, softly closing the door behind her. I knew that she would wait for me to speak further, and I put two queries in one.

"How is she? Will I waken her if I move quietly around the room?"

"You wouldn't waken her if you fired off a cannon," she answered. "But there's always the chance that she might rouse, for no reason at all, and see you there. As for her condition, there is nothing the matter with her except extreme exhaustion, and the sedative is taking care of that."

"I hope she doesn't waken," I said worriedly, "but I must risk it. I simply must go through her things."

Her face lightened quickly.

"Oh! You're going to have a try for that letter!" she said. "I'm so glad. You know her habits, so you'll have a much better chance than I would. Her husband simply threw up his hands."

Nurse Admits Madge.

"Most men would, I imagine," I said absently.

"You would like to go in now, I take it," she said. "Is there anything you wish to ask of me beforehand?"

"I do not think so," I told her. "Mr. Underwood told me in detail everything that you and he had done. I simply wish to go in and sit down, and 'go into the silence'."

"You will have nothing else but," she said softly. "But please call upon me for anything you wish."

"Thank you," I murmured, and then we were in Lillian's private sitting room, and through the open door into her bedroom I could see her recumbent figure stretched out upon the bed.

Doesn't Disturb Lillian.

"Do you want to look at her?" Miss Whitlock murmured.

"Could I help her by doing it?" I countered.

"Not a bit," she said.

"Then," I decided, "there's no use giving myself pain. I need all my wits for this job. Just let me sit here for a few minutes."

I did not want to go over the ground which Harry and Miss Whitlock already had covered. I knew the nurse well enough to be sure that she had left no slightest routine incident uncompleted. But I also knew that if I did not find what I sought elsewhere, I would have to go over their ground again.

May Be Hidden In Robe.

I put every iota of resolution and brain power and imagination I possessed into my scrutiny of the room and its articles of furniture. But nowhere did I see anything not already searched, which could possibly serve as a hiding place for the missing letter.

I rose from my chair, and with a beckoning gesture to Miss Whitlock went into the bedroom.

"Has Mrs. Underwood anything on in which she could have secreted that letter?"

The nurse shook her head with decision.

"I undressed her myself," she said, "and put her into a fresh silk nightgown, which I took from a pile of lingerie in a drawer there. There isn't a place on it to hide a cigaret paper, let alone a letter."

My eyes strayed to the foot of the bed across which lay a quilted blue robe, which is one of Lillian's "familiars." I looked it over meticulously, and suddenly the idea took me by the throat.

"May I bring that robe into the other room," I asked.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Oct. 8.
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

MODERATE success may be attained this day, according to conflicting figures, by a determined and persistent effort applied diligently and forcefully to objectives desired. These may be in new projects or fresh labors in which the stakes are not too ambitious and do not require too heavy an outlay. But along the way some strange, surprising or disintegrating factor may be encountered, to be vanquished by quick and forceful methods.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter some opportunity for launching new projects or aiming at cherished plans of a changed order, to be attacked with aggressiveness, positiveness and persistence. There will be need to combat peculiar, surprising and drastic situations which may call for an unexpected outlay of funds. Also little support may be looked for from elders, relatives or friends.

A child born on this day may have energy, enterprise and creative ability of fair order, but is likely to encounter want of support where least expected.

Dance to Keep Your Figure Trim

By MME QUI VIVE

There are girls with sufficient strength of character to start a routine of calesthenics and to stick to it. They deserve a flock of beauty medals. Many women are not interested in gymnastics. It isn't that they're lazy, but the idea does not appeal to them. Athletic sports, like golf, tennis and swimming, are claiming the attention of more lovelies every year, but they are summer diversions. What about the winter season? Then they eat and grow fat.

If they won't swing their arms and kick up their heels, pull air into their lung bellows, and strengthen their noble backbones, they can dance. Dancing is a form of exercise that promotes grace, that harmonizes the movements of the body, produces perfect rhythm, ease of manner. Better still, it creates a sense of well being and buoyancy of spirit. Nobody can complain that it is "drudgery," the favorite expression of the cushion lovers who never give their muscles a workout.

Every little girl, beginning at the age of four, should have dancing lessons, either esthetic, social or gymnastic. Because these activities do good by the bony framework, the musculatory system and the mentality. Dancing is the highest, most beautiful form of physical culture.

The awkward age brings quick, angular jerky movements. A girl of thirteen or fourteen seldom knows what to do with her hands and feet, falls into ugly poses when sitting or standing. If dancing lessons are a part of her education she will have no awkward age, but will comport herself in a gracious manner. What young, middle-aged, even the elderly should endeavor to attain is body balance, and that's what a well trained instructor will develop. It makes for poise, gracefulness, pleasing motions.

Plumpies whose adipose cushions have settled on the calves and thighs will find tap dancing a jolly way of normalizing their shanks. Others who have an overdeveloped equator, a waistline that knows no bounds, and hips that have spread will find slenderness in rhythmic dancing. This form of dancing tightens up the abdominal fibres; fat cells will not linger on strong muscles.

Dancing is not only good fun, but it cleanses the lungs, and that means good complexion coloring. Little pale face had better try a few steps, see what she can do in the way of manufacturing natural rouge spots.

Women who find that the old routine is making them feel low will freshen up physically and spiritually if they trip the light fantastic. Let them turn on the radio, go to it.

Any Limit To a Child's Freedom?

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

At the recent meeting of the 45th annual convention of the Congress of Parents and Teachers at Boston, I had my ears open for statements about the need of more restraint and discipline of young children in the home.

Only a few words were said on the subject. On the contrary, there was the fashionable warning against restraints. The burden of the talks bearing on home and school education was "more freedom." Three distinguished speakers, all eminent university leaders in education, gave special weight to this emphasis.

One, for example, after referring rather contemptuously to a few "minor prophets" who "are calling for more iron in the soul of youth" and who are saying that children in the average home today have too much freedom allowed them and too little effort required of them, warned parents of the danger in the home of too much physical and moral protection and too little opportunity to learn from experience.

CHILD SUPERVISION

I believe he was entirely right in reminding us parents that we are prone to boss too much and to make many choices for the child he could make with profit for himself. But what I dislike is the impression he seems to have left, that the growing child can safely make practically all his own choices and decisions and that the experiences of his parents and the ...ce are of little or no consequence.

A second speaker, dean of the school of education of another university, said in so many words, "The way to happiness and to character growth and citizenship in the child at home is through more freedom." When challenged by a questioner from the audience he added, "freedom with guidance" which to most of the audience meant, no doubt, freedom with persuasion."

A third speaker, dean of the school of education in another large university, when asked in an open forum about freedom in school, described what he considered an ideal precedure. In a certain high school he visited he felt his life and limb endangered as he was in the hall while the students were passing. Escaping to the office, he was told by the principal that his plan was to let bedlam reign until the students demanded order — for at least ten days. The speaker added that eventually this became a well-ordered school.

Use Common Sense.

Significantly, this ideal of "freedom" was uttered before the convention assembled in Fanuel hall, the "Cradle of Liberty." Did the fathers of our Republic who once assembled there have such "freedom" as that speaker advocated in their homes and schools? I wonder if we would have this republic now if they had.

One saving grace at that meeting, in my judgment, was in the remarks by Dr. Alonzo Grace, commissioner of education for the State of Connecticut. He said, "It seems to me most such schemes for freedom are allergic to effort....I believe we ought to use common sense....There is a lot of soft sentimentalism in our education....In our education for democracy we need more emphasis on discipline and self-control in order to guarantee real freedom and responsibility."

Is not the growing lack of discipline of children at home, in accordance with prevailing theories, the very greatest danger to our democracy? Can freedom survive without discipline? Can democracy?

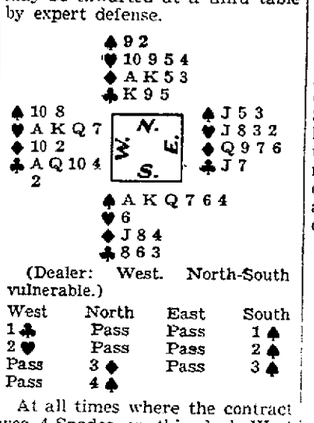
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GUESS HIS INTENTIONS

To a great extent, good defense consists of figuring out what the declarer is trying to do and then devising a means of thwarting him. Duplicate is a great means of displaying this factor at its best. One declarer may play a hand badly and be set. Another may try the best play and succeed with it. That very play, however, may be thwarted at a third table by expert defense.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1♣	Pass	Pass	1♠
2♥	Pass	Pass	2♠
Pass	3♦	Pass	3♠
Pass	4♠

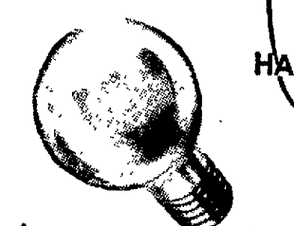
At all times where the contract was 4-Spades on this deal, West led the heart K and followed with the Q, which was ruffed. Two top spades dropped the trumps, and then came the variations.

Several declarers then played the diamond A and K to the fifth and sixth tricks, followed by a small diamond in the hope that the suit would break and build up the tenth trick winner on which a club could be discarded. This, of course, failed.

A more able declarer decided that West's bids of two suits made it unlikely he had three diamonds, a fact confirmed by his also following suit on two spades. He therefore based his plan on finding the diamond Q with East. On the fifth trick he led to the diamond A and returned the diamond 3, East taking his Q and returning his heart J, which was ruffed. The now-set-up diamond J was scored and the club 8 led, West winning with the A and returning the heart A, which was ruffed. Now the club K was an entry for the diamond K, on which the club 8 was discarded, the declarer then taking the last trick with the spade Q and making his contract.

At another table, that identical play was attempted, but East, after winning with his diamond Q, led back the club J, to make sure that the K was knocked out of dummy. As a consequence, South was blocked from taking his diamond J and then going to the dummy again to use the diamond K for a discard. The declarer had to lose two tricks in clubs and was beaten in spite of his own good try.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

If West opens this deal with 1-Spade, South bids 2-Diamonds and then come two passes, should East reopen the bidding with 2-Spades?

Even MacPhail Admits Now Yanks Were Better Team

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Here is hot news.

Unless seven Madison high school boys drop out of school before the first of November, Madison will be listed as a class A school under Ohio High School Athletic association rules.

That means the Richland county basketball tournament would be played without Madison next spring. And it means Madison would go directly to the Sandusky district tournament without playing in a preliminary qualifier.

Madison now has 156 boys enrolled in the high school. The limit for class B is 149 on Nov. 1.

Coach Al Fendrick doesn't think there's much prospect of seven boys dropping out of school in time for this year's reclassification, but the prospect of moving up into class A doesn't worry the Madison mentor.

"This tournament play is largely a matter of luck anyhow," opines Fendrick. "It's a case of you do or you don't in a hurry. And if we're going to lose a tournament I'd just as leave lose to a good class A team."

Al is no Pollyanna, but he believes in looking on the bright side—if necessary.

As a matter of fact he was all set for class B play this winter with one of his best teams. Only one player, the husky Walt Weimer, is missing from the rampant Ram aggregation that came with a rush at the tag end of last season, and forced the county champion Butler Bulldogs into overtime play in the semi-finals of the county joust.

For Weimer's heavy-duty job under the hoops, Fendrick has Bob Anthony, who is a pretty lively fellow under those awnings himself.

Of course enough boys may leave school, or move away from the district, before Nov. 1 to keep Madison a B school

But whether Madison goes A or B it will play out its schedule in the Richland county league this winter, Superintendent Olan LaRue said yesterday.

And the Richland county league won't be quite the same this winter. Instead of a round-robin, home-and-home schedule, the league will play only one round. Teams meeting more than once will have only one game counted in the standings, and the league games are already started in the schedule drawn up last spring.

This sport writing racket wasn't tough enough. Now we'll have to find out, when two county teams meet, whether the game is for fun or for keeps. And whether to count it in the standings. Woe is me!

Speaking of Walt Weimer, as we were a while back, it still may be news that big Walt has enrolled at Mt. Union, his father's alma mater.

Walt was all fixed up at Akron, Kent State and Tennessee, but at the last moment decided to follow in his father's footsteps. And he's now playing tackle on the Mount frosh team.

Ashland Wallops Bucyrus, 18-0

ASHLAND — Scoring twice in the second stanza and once in the fourth, Ashland high school gridders drubbed Bucyrus 21-0 here last night.

Bob Puglisi, Ashland fullback, ripped through for the first score from the five yard line following a 54 yard march and then caught a pass for the extra point.

* * *

Still in the same quarter, Leo Strang galloped through the Bucyrus tackle, threaded his way through the backfield and scored a 77-yard touchdown. He also kicked the extra point.

In the last quarter Fritz Smith, left end, fell on a blocked kick in the Bucyrus end zone and marked up the last tally. Jim Shull plunged for the extra point.

Lineups:

Ashland	Pos.	Bucyrus
Smith	LE	Parisel
Grives	LT	Schell

Tygers Get First Test At Newark

Undefeated Wildcats Have Seven Letter Men.

NOT since the opening game of of the season when everyone was even-Steven have the marauding Mansfield Tygers faced an undefeated high school football team, but they'll have that unusual pleasure Friday night when they invade Newark.

* * *

Coach Luther Hanshue's Wildcats have won two games and tied one in their first three sorties in the gridiron wars, and are doped to give Mansfield its first real test of the season.

When the Mansfield-Newark game was first scheduled, the Wildcats made no secret of the fact that they had a potentially great grid machine in the making.

Principal cog in that machine was big Bill Craig, the boy from the O. S. and S. O. home at Xenia who won the shot put at the Mansfield relays last spring, and who provided the spark that gave the Wildcats a Central Ohio league football championship last fall, and carried them well into the state basketball tournament.

The Wildcats thought they'd have big Bill, an end, back again this fall, and that, plus the fact that the 'Cats boasted a better than average supporting cast for the big fellow, led them to take a shot at big-time competition. For Mansfield is now big-time competition as far as Ohio high school football is concerned.

Craig reported for practice this fall, but one of the C-O loop schools had been checking on his scholastic record, and reported to State Commissioner H. R. Townsend that he had been in school too long to permit his play this season. So Craig was ruled out.

It was a tough blow for Newark, but the 'Cats have been getting along all right so far. They defeated Columbus West 20 to 6, and then in two league games edged Lancaster 12 to 6 and played a scoreless tie with Marietta.

Newark has seven lettermen in a starting lineup that averages 165 pounds. Mansfield's starting lineup averages 168 pounds and for the first time since the Akron West game the Tygers will not be giving weight advantage to their opponents.

The probable starting lineup and weights for Newark will be: Smith, 175, le, Honnenberger, 155, lt; Wheeler, 160, lg, Christman, 183, c; Jury, 142, rg, Jones 170, rt; Bibart, 195, re, Cooper, 138, qb, Bickel, 160, lh, Winn, 155, rh; and Gorsuch, 185, fb.

Lettermen are Smith, Wheeler, Christman, Jury, Bibart, Cooper and Winn On the line, Honnenberger, Jones and Wheeler are juniors, the rest seniors. In the backfield Cooper is the only senior. Bickel and Winn are Juniors and Gorsuch is a sophomore.

Bickel and Winn are reported plenty fast, and run the ends a lot. Gorsuch is a plunger. All three can pass, usually to Smith. Sophomore Paul Jackson, fastest boy on the squad, but green, probably will see action at a halfback spot.

* * *

Last year Newark won eight straight games before losing the finale to Canton 13 to 6. The Wildcats scored 179 points to their opponents' 41, and took their first clear-cut Central Ohio league championship.

SHOW ELYRIA FILM

Movies of the Mansfield-Elyria football game will be shown at a meeting of the Downtown Coaches association tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the high school gym. Tyger coaches will also report on the Sandusky game and discuss plans for the Newark game at Newark Friday night. The public is invited.

This Third Out Play Will Go Down In Series History

Here is the dramatic ninth inning play in the fourth world series game in Brooklyn which gave the New York Yankees a chance to come from behind—which they did—and win the ball game after Brooklyn had "won" the game, 4 to 3. With two out, Mickey Owen, Dodgers' catcher, dropped the ball on a third strike to Tom Henrich, Yank outfielder. Henrich raced to first and reached there safely as Owen ran after the ball. Then followed the rally which ended with the Yanks winning, 7-4.

FELLER OUTSHINES OLD SATCHEL PAIGE

DAYTON — (INS)— Rapid Robert Feller of the Cleveland Indians today claimed a pitching "victory" over Satchel Paige, legendary hurling ace of the Negro professional league.

Feller, hurling for Frigidaire in an exhibition against Paige's Kansas City Monarchs, pitched three hitless innings and fanned five. Paige in the same period shut out the Frigidaire club, but he allowed four hits. The Monarches went on to win the game with new pitchers on the mound for both teams.

Fans Boo At 'Looney Lew'

Jenkins Examined By Docs After Poor Fight.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— The ring's problem child—"Looney Lew" Jenkins—goes before commission physicians today for an official investigation of his performance against Freddie Cochrane in last night's alleged battle of champions.

Veteran observers insisted no lightweight champion ever made such a sorry showing as scrawny Jenkins did at Madison Square Garden in losing a non-title 10-round decision to Cochrane, the welterweight king.

Continuous booing and stomping came from the 12,182 fans as Cochrane pursued the skinny, hollow-eyed Texan from gong to gong, flooring him five times and causing one wet-corner slip. Staggering backwards like a sick turkey, Jenkins rarely threw a punch.

Willie Ketchum, his acting manager, blamed Looney Lew's ghastly exhibition upon a motorcycle accident he suffered a few weeks ago.

Ketchum said the muscles in Jenkins' arms and shoulders hadn't recovered enough to permit his usual hard punching.

Chairman John J. Phelan of the New York commission ordered Jenkins to appear before its physicians today to determine his physical condition.

Cochrane lost only the third round—on a foul. He weighed 141½ pounds, 6½ more than Jenkins.

The gross gate was $31,111.

Lightnin' Jones Ties Crider For Second In State Scoring

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Those Wolfe brothers of Upper Sandusky —Fenton of Heidelberg's Student Princes, and Russell (Flying Express) of the Upper Sandusky high school Rams—are doing all right by themselves in a football way.

Fenton, star halfback of the Student Princes, leads the Ohio conference in scoring with 24 points. He made the two touchdowns that beat Otterbein Sept. 27, and then came back for more Saturday as Heidelberg beat Ashland 37 to 0.

But Russell, captain of the Rams, is doing even better than his brother. He's leading the entire state in scoring with 56 points in three contests, getting two touchdowns Friday on runs of 39 and 20 yards to beat Ada 26 to 6. On his nine touchdown jaunts this year, young Wolfe has traveled 421 yards—and that's an average of 46.7 yards for each scoring sprint.

Although the records in the State High School Athletic association office list young Wolfe as a junior, he's really a senior, according to word from Upper Sandusky. (College coaches please note.)

Last week's scoring leader, scintillating Jack Crider of Canton McKinley, was held to a single point after touchdown as the Bulldogs overwhelmed Champaign, Ill., 26 to 6 with a last half splurge, and that Junior Star now has 48 points, the same total boasted by Elroy (Lightnin') Jones, Mansfield's fine colored halfback.

* * *

Jones got into the select scoring class Friday night as he rammed over three touchdowns, one on a 66-yard run, to smother Sandusky's Streaks by 32 to 0.

Along with Mansfield, three other "M" teams assumed commanding spots in the race for the state championship. Two were the ever present Massillon and McKinley of Canton squads, and the other was Middletown. Massillon's mighty Tigers, claimants of the crown the last six years, handed Cleveland Cathedral Latin, city champ, its first defeat in 13 starts, 39 to 0, and ran their own victory string to 36. Middletown remained in the unscored on class, while running its three-victory total to 81, by beating Cincinnati Woodward 45 to 0. Roosevelt Gregory, who is averaging 8.9 yards per try, leads the Middies with 37 points—although three apparent touchdowns against Woodward were called back because of penalties.

Massillon tangles with thrice-victorious Alliance Friday, and 22,000 are expected to sit in on the Stark county encounter, while McKinley plays Warren's strong team, also a three-time winner. Mansfield's opponent is Newark, boasting two victories and a scoreless tie.

Steubenville, for the fifth straight year, failed to get by the third game without defeat, Coach Mel Knowlton's Stubtown crew bowing 7-0 to Doc Wargo's Akron South squad.

Other highlights of the weekend games included Xenia O. S. & S. O. Home's 13th straight win, 38 to 0 over Northridge; Hamilton's third straight, 20-6 over Cincinnati Roger Bacon; the third straight deadlock between Troy and Greenville at 13-13; the unusual 2-2 tie between Grandview and Columbus St. Mary; Lebanon's 2-0 win over Osborn Bath, and Circleville's scoreless tie with Greenfield McClain after the latter had scored 101 points against two previous foes.

Jimmy Robinson's Canton Lehman team won its third straight, 24-7 over Kent Roosevelt, while Fairport Harbor knocked Canton Lincoln out of the unbeaten class, 27-13. Coshocton blocked a punt in the second session, and intercepted two passes in the last two minutes for the three touchdowns which beat Chillicothe 19-0; Portsmouth's once-mighty Trojans were still seeking their first win bowing to Huntington (W. Va.) 31-13, while East Liverpool's goal line is still uncrossed after beating Salem 13-0 for the third win of the campaign.

Loudonville Nips Bluejays

Trims Bellville Team 18-0 In the Mud and Rain.

LOUDONVILLE — Loudonville high school gridders waded through mud and Bellville to win 18-0 here last night.

After a scoreless first quarter Loudonville started a sustained drive which took the team 55 yards for its first score with Jim Young, Wayne Marietta and Ken Nouse alternating at carrying the ball. Young scored from the two yard line.

Recovering a Bellville fumble on the 25-yard line, Loudonville scored the second time in four plays. Longest play was a flea flicker pass and a lateral. Nouse passed to End Bud Darling who lateraled to Young who was forced out on the 2-yard stripe. Nouse went over on the next play.

Another 50-yard drive netted the Loudonville their last score. Featuring three passes from Nouse to Marietta the drive took them to the six-yard line and from there a reverse from Young to Marietta scored.

Bombers Again Stand Atop Baseball World

Dodgers Gave Champs Best Battle Of Any National League Outfit

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Yankees, colossus of the baseball world, are sitting up there again, looking down at the little fellows.

Their 3 to 1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the final game of the 1941 world series yesterday only served to emphasize the dominance of the Bombers.

This was the eighth straight world series victory for the Yankees since 1926 and when big Ernie Bonham downed the Dodgers with four hits yesterday it gave the boys from the Bronx the remarkable record of having won 32 of their last 36 world series contests.

In the time since Ed Barrow came here to build the Yankee empire, his sluggers have slaughtered six of the eight National league clubs in world series engagements. The only ones they haven't polished off are the Boston Braves and the Phillies, but give them time.

The Dodgers gave the Yanks a better scrap than did any of their National league predecessors. At least, they were not beaten four straight, and there can be no denying that they ran into more than their share of hard luck. They really put up a battle. But the Yankees won, 4 to 1, because they were the better ball club.

The Yankees won because they had great pitching, tight fielding, and the ability to deliver base hits exactly when they were needed. They capitalized on every Brooklyn mistake, pulled out one game after it actually was "lost." Give a cheer for the Dodgers, but never forget that they were up against a better team.

The Dodgers, themselves, knew it. They wept when Freddy Fitzsimmons was knocked out of the third game by a line drive after he had held the Yankees scoreless for seven frames. They were dumfounded when Mickey Owen, an almost faultless receiver, dropped a third strike that cost them the decision in the fourth game. But it didn't occur to them to rail at the Yankees and claim they had won on luck.

Even President Larry MacPhail, who is not renowned for his temperate remarks in the pinches, said last night: "They beat us because they were a better team." He found no fault with his Dodgers, not even Manager Durocher, which constitutes a new indoor record.

All through the series the Dodgers were forced to look at pitching that curled their hair. In three of the Yankee victories, Red Ruffing, Marius Russo and Bonham went the full nine innings.

And in the matter of hitting, Joe Gordon, the Yankees' peerless second baseman, pounded out seven hits in 14 official times at bat and drew seven bases on balls, the latter tying the record for a five-game world series It gave Gordon a batting mark of .448 for the two play-offs in which he has participated, this one and '39, another record. Furthermore, his single in the second inning of yesterday's tussle drove Bill Dickey in with the winning run.

The real feature of the deciding game, though, was Bonham's pitching. Off and on all season the big fellow was out with an ailing back. Yet when his big chance came yesterday to close out the still struggling Dodgers and wind up the series he fired perhaps the greatest game of his career.

It was a hard loss for Whitlow Wyatt, who beat the Yankees 3-2 in the second game of the series and pitched his heart out to keep them in the running. He was apologetic for the trouble in the fifth inning, when he and DiMaggio exchanged hard words in the center of the diamond and players of both clubs swarmed out to join in. Both he and Joe were under a strain. Whit said, and he still admired Joe very much.

Gordon undoubtedly was the hero of the series, with Charley Keller a close second. If a "goat" had to be named, then it wasn't Owen, who dropped the third strike, but rather Dolf Camilli, the Dodgers' clean-up batter, who made three hits in 18 times up and struck out six times.

Buckeyes May Still Lose One

Fritz Warns the Boys May Still Be Just Human.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — An open letter to Gus Q. Football Phan: Dear Gus:

It looks like you are putting a swell bunch of kids on a pretty big spot with all this national championship talk you've been tossing around since Ohio State's Bucks bowled over Southern California's Trojans 33 to 0 Saturday afternoon.

They're the same boys we were talking about before the season opened, when we sympathized with Coach Paul Brown because of the lack of material at hand for his big-time debut.

The Bucks have done better than anyone expected, as you and I realize, in beating Missouri and Southern Cal, but this national championship talk appears a bit premature. No one knows just how good Missouri and Southern California were—but everyone knows how tough Purdue, Northwestern and the other Big Ten teams are, year after year.

It might be a good idea to wait and see what happens in the Western conference campaign before putting the "whammy" on the team with a lot of hot air about championships of any caliber.

The Bucks are still a team without a star — which is just what Brown wants. His victories are team wins — not one-man conquests. His stuff is new, thrilling to watch, and it produces touchdowns; but maybe these other big time coaches (they're pretty smart, too, remember) will find a way to stop that Brown attack, and a way to get through the Buckeye defense.

We hope they don't. We hope that the Bucks reach the promised land under Brown's guidance. The guy deserves it, and it would be great to have the Bucks up there at the peak. But you don't win national championships merely by beating Southern California and Missouri — and you don't get even one leg on the Big Ten trophy with such wins.

Remember when Francis Schmidt roared through the Big Ten with his razzle-dazzle attack. His star-laden squads were ticketed as the unbeatable Bucks every year, but something always bobbed up to spoil it. The preseason predictions might have had as much to do with the collapse as anything else.

The Western conference coaches finally solved Schmidt's great offense, and were cramming it down his throat at the finish. Brown's attack is based on sound football—down to earth blocking and tackling—and he'll probably do better with mediocre material than anyone else ever seen around these parts, but there are physical and mental limits to which any team can rise.

How about all of us forgetting this Big Ten and national championship talk and getting our feet back on the ground? At the start we all agreed that Brown might lose half his games this year and still be credited with a successful season. Let's keep that idea.

With all this loose conversation rolling about, who knows but that the wolves might start howling if the Bucks lose even one game? That wouldn't be fair, now would it?

Let's give 'em a break!

Mt. Vernon And Marion Grid Teams Slide To Tie Score

MARION—Playing on a field that could have been plowed with a broom, Marion Harding high school and Mt. Vernon battled and slipped in a postponed game to a zero to zero tie here last night.

After a first half dominated by Madison High's next opponent, Mr. Vernon, the Harding team came to life in the third quarter and by means of a pass from Charles Roberts to Bob Kennerly placed Mt. Vernon with their backs to their own goal—a position they kept for most of the remaining game time.

Twice Mt. Vernon backs, standing deep in their own end zone, caught high lobbed centers and booted between the hands of Harding blockers to put their team temporarily out of danger.

Once following a 25-yard drive Harding backs plunged four times into the Mt. Vernon goal line to have the tailback fumble the last attempt and fail to score.

In fact the only score of the evening was a bloody mouth some irate Harding back hung on a Mt. Vernon tackler after he was abruptly stopped after a short run.

Although the game didn't prove anything last night, it does give Madison's Rams an advantage for next Friday's game. With just one day of practice Mt. Vernon is going to be at a disadvantage playing the hard practicing Rams.

Furthermore, as Coach Al Fendrick noted, the Mt. Vernon team is probably going to be rather tired Friday night after sliding around in the mud and carrying mud soaked uniforms around for four quarters.

Postponement of the game from last Friday night until last night will help the Rams a lot in another way—Fendrick was able to go himself last night and scout his next opponent.

Last night he saw a Mt. Vernon squad equipped with plenty of weight and strong on off tackle reverses. Using Ed Wright on reverses from right to left, they continually hit hardest between their own left end and left tackle.

Tonight and tomorrow the Rams will be able to continue their field practice in preparation for the game while Mt. Vernon will probably have to lay off work tonight and both teams will hold only blackboard practice on Thursday preceding the game at Mt. Vernon.

Fendrick said last night that he would concentrate his efforts to point of contact blocking for this game.

* * *

"What we want to do is shake a runner loose, and if we have to double up on the blocking at the line to do it, okay, we'll do it," he said.

Lineups follow:

Harding	Pos.	Mt. Vernon
Kennerly	LE	Mentis
Lucas	LT	Harris
Turner	LG	Stull
T. Hurst	C	Lybarger
Lewis	RG	Schlosser
Kay	RT	Blackford

THEATERS

Calloway Opening.

Cab Calloway and his Cotton Club revue take over the Madison stage today for a two-day engagement. The king of Hi-de-Ho and his aggregation of bandsmen and entertainers come to Mansfield straight from Toledo's Paramount theater to appear four times daily in a revue that blends sweet music with that distinctive brand of jive for which the originator of "scat" singing is noted. Scheduled to appear in the afternoon at 2:55 and 5:15 p. m., and again in the evening at 7:30 and 9.30, the revue introduces the singer, Avis Andrews; the intra-band unit called the Cab Jivers, and three members of the original Cotton Club orchestra, "Cozy" Cole, "Chu" Berry, and Benny Payne.

Historic Event.

The story of the Tennessee mountain boy who became the nation's hero in the first World war is told with simplicity and dignity in "Sergeant York," showing at the Ohio. Starring Gary Cooper in the title role the picture tells the straightforward story of Alvin C. York, Cumberland Valley farmer, who tried to wrest a living from the stony soil and forget his troubles over the bottle. His conversion to religion under unusual circumstances and his realization that to preserve a country man must fight for it are realistic episodes in this production that has battle scenes unparalleled in screen history thus far. Joan Leslie, a surprising newcomer, plays the mountain girl who becomes York's wife, while Margaret Wycherly of "Tobacco Road" fame plays York's mother.

Camp Comedy.

Bob Hope carries on a one-man assault against orthodox army tactics in his role of a gun-shy movie actor catapulted into the army as the result of one of his own jokes in the comedy, "Caught in the Draft," showing at the Ritz. Nothing stops him in his campaign to win the colonel's daughter, played by Dorothy Lamour, and as he stages one blitzkreig after another to become a hero. Eddie Bracken, Lynn Overman and Clarence Kolb add to the fun and the picture features some new tunes by Hope and Miss Lamour.

Musical Show.

"Time Out for Rhythm" continues its parade of personalities across the Park screen with Rudy Vallee, Rosemary Lane, Ann Miller and Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra as the main attractions. The plot concerns Vallee's efforts as a theatrical booking agent to book his new discovery, Ann Miller, and the production is woven together with music and dancing. Allen Jenkins and the Three Stooges are also featured. "Poison Pen," with Flora Robson and Robert Newton is the second picture.

Gay Comedy.

The Gay Nineties were never gayer than depicted in "Strawberry Blond," by James Cagney, Rita Hayworth and Olivia de Havilland, in the picture showing at the Majestic. "Kit Carson," a western thriller, shares the bill. Jon Hall, Lynn Bari and Dana Andrews are cast.

FILES PETITION

Church Board Asks Return of Lots To Former Owners.

The Home Mission board of the Richland Church of the Brethren today had filed a petition in common pleas court seeking authority to turn back two lots in Lincoln Heights to their former owners, John D. Constance and Anton Reiser.

The church obtained title to the properties in 1926 but never used them for church purposes, the petition states. It adds that the former owners are willing to take the lots back in lieu of a $1,200 payment due on them. The transfer must have court approval.

Animation Conspicuous By Absence After Opening Proves Sluggish.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Animation continued lacking in the stock market today and most issues remained in a narrow area with the leaders shading lower.

The opening was sluggish and some of the pivotals had not appeared on the tape for a long time after the start.

Sharing Wall Street attention with markets and price fluctuations was the impending treasury announcement of its financing program. Word from Washington indicated the operation would involve at least a billion dollars to become one of the largest "new money" transactions in several years.
